

FEDERAL CASH MAY HELP FIRE NEEDS

Windshield Pocks Worrying Seattle

SEATTLE (AP)—Superbombs, supernatural or superstition, there was no doubt about it today, the one million people in the Puget Sound country were stirred up by the case of the pockmarked windshields. Some were even blaming H-bombs.

And the mayor of this city of 500,000 was trying to stir up the President of the United States. The mayor, Allan Pomeroy, apparently was among the believers that some thing, rather than someone, is damaging thousands of automobile windshields with an unknown substance.

The mayor asked the President to "instruct appropriate federal agencies to cooperate with local authorities on an emergency basis."

There are doubters, too, who think an awful lot of people are victims of mass hysteria, suddenly conscious of something that may have happened months ago. "Tommyrot," exploded Dr. D. M. Ritter, assigned by the chemistry department of the University of Washington to assist authorities seeking an answer to the riddle. "There isn't anything I know of that could be causing unusual breaks in windshields," he said after examining several and residue found on the cars. "These people must be dreaming!"

One thing is certain: the claims of damaged windshields are mounting into the thousands. And one thing else appears certain: no other glass objects seem to be suffering, not even side windows of cars.

The description of the damage varies from actual holes to pit marks covering every known shape: chips, scratches, mars, pits, holes, crumbling, blemishes, blurs, blots and cracks. Some people even claim the damage has happened before their eyes.

Law enforcement officials are convinced that some vandalism was involved in cases reported at Bellingham. Some, but not all, believe the vandalism spread.

Then, this week, other communities south of Bellingham said they had suffered an outbreak of the trouble. Wednesday night it broke out in Seattle. The police switchboard couldn't handle the complaints; neither could the newspapers.

Some police officers said it even happened to them. Others took the Dr. Ritter attitude. A state patrol officer, who asked not to be named because "so many high officials appear to have been taken in," said he hadn't found one actual case outside of Bellingham that couldn't be laid to normal travel damage.

French Brace For Assault In Indochina

Red-Backed Vietminh Entrenched Only 2,400 Feet From Stronghold

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—The Vietminh shoved tens of thousands of fresh troops into attack positions around Dien Bien Phu today. The third round of the savage battle for the French Union stronghold appeared to be only hours away.

Reliable sources said rebel Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap had rushed up at least 40,000 untrained regulars to bolster his badly battered force in the low hills encircling the fortified plain and along its fringes.

With these reinforcements and replacements for the thousands killed by murderous French fire in the last five weeks came 5,000 or more youthful rebels just out of training camps.

It appeared certain here the Vietminh in their next all-out assault would outnumber the defenders at least eight to one.

The Communist - led reinforcements went into forward trenches to relieve units of the four divisions which have spearheaded the hard fighting around the fortress since the first Vietminh push March 13.

Federal Secrecy Hit By Publisher

Veil On Atomic Progress Cited, Freedom Of Information Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secrecy on atomic weapons progress has thrown civil defense planning into confusion and hindered development of a continental defense system, the American Society of Newspaper Editors was told today.

Paul Block Jr., co-publisher of the Toledo Blade, reported to some 400 editors at their annual meeting that despite recent hydrogen bomb revelations, atomic developments have outrun public information.

"The public appears to be relatively farther behind informationally than ever before," said Block, the society's one-man watchdog committee on atomic information.

The sensation created by Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss with his recent description of a 17-month-old hydrogen bomb explosion, Block said, raises the question "whether the people must not be told much more much sooner." He continued:

"Witness the confusion of the Federal Civil Defense Administration. The potential of the H-bomb required a major change in emphasis in the teachings of this organization."

"Now the watchword is 'evacuation' and the training of rescue units is pinned to the needs of rescuing other areas rather than one's own city."

"And what of the many stories about a cobalt bomb which would set off a rain of destruction by the dropping of radioactive materials many miles from the site of the explosion?"

A major question of national defense policy, the editor went on, is whether more money should be spent on continental defense.

"Clearly the answer to this is in the hands of the electorate," he said. "Does it have enough information on which to base a decision?"

Block's message was one section of a comprehensive report by the society's Committee on Freedom of Information headed by J. Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post.

General improvement in the information policy of federal agencies was reported, but Wiggins emphasized a need for a federal law to compel officials to divulge nonmilitary information if they refuse to do so voluntarily.

His committee deplored, in addition, the growing tendency of congressional committees to hold secret sessions. Forty per cent of the 3,105 committee and subcommittee meetings in the last session were held behind closed doors.

It commended efforts being made by various newspapers to open up the legislative hearings and win enactment of freedom-of-information laws.

Mundt Pushes For Hearing Despite McCarthy Demand

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Mundt (R-SD) pushed ahead today with scheduled plans for a televised probe of the McCarthy-Army row in the face of demands from the McCarthy camp for another investigation before the public hearings get underway.

Mundt, acting chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee during the inquiry, professed hope the public hearings would start next Thursday as planned.

The call for a pre-investigation came from Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and Roy M. Cohn, the subcommittee's regular counsel, following the release yesterday of the Army's 29-point "bill of particulars" against the senator and his aides.

Cohn telegraphed from New York for "an immediate investigation" to find out who violated an earlier subcommittee decision not to make public the Army charges until McCarthy's accusations against the Army also had been made public.

subcommittee as a basis for its case in the public inquiry, alleged that McCarthy and his aides "sought by improper means" and by "threats" against Army people to win favored treatment of a draftee, Pvt. G. David Schine, former subcommittee investigator.

Except for pointing up McCarthy's reported role in the affair, the new bill of particulars was generally similar to the lengthier document made public in mid-March.

McCarthy at that time put out countercharges that top Army officials were using Schine as a "hostage" to ward off a subcommittee probe of Army treatment of alleged Communists.

Meanwhile, Mundt said he has staff investigators working "until after midnight" interviewing witnesses and checking parliamentary law and procedures in preparation for a start of the hearings right on schedule Thursday.

Kidnap Case 'Hero' Guilty After Trial

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A federal court jury has convicted Louis Shoulters, the veteran police officer who broke the Greenleaf kidnapping case, of lying about the handling of the ransom money.

A half year ago Shoulters, who spent more than a quarter of a century on the St. Louis police force, was hailed as a hero after he arrested Carl Austin Hall.

Hall and his partner, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, were executed for kidnapping and killing 6-year-old Bobby Greenleaf.

Yesterday the federal jury found Shoulters guilty of lying about his handling of two money-stuffed suitcases found in Hall's room.

Shoulters was charged with committing perjury in testimony early this year before a federal grand jury. He maintained the suitcases were brought into the police station 15 to 20 minutes after Hall was booked. The government said they weren't brought in until more than an hour later.

Of the $600,000 ransom money paid to Hall by Robert C. Greenleaf, wealthy automobile dealer, $303,720 is still missing.

The former police lieutenant was granted 15 days in which to file a motion for a new trial. Sentence was deferred pending possible filing of the motion. The maximum penalty is five years imprisonment and $2,000 fine.

Shoulters was the second person convicted as the result of a grand jury investigation into the missing ransom money. Elmer Dolan, patrolman who aided in the arrest of Hall, also was convicted on a perjury charge. Dolan, suspended by the St. Louis police force, has filed a motion for a new trial.

Thug Apologizes

CLEVELAND (AP)—A young man walked into the Club Beverage Co. yesterday, smiled and said: "I'm terribly sorry but this is a stickup." After he took $25 from Mrs. Mary di Cillo, he apologized: "You see, this is the way I make my living."

Root, Tait Say It Would Be Okay With U.S.

Council May Weigh Expanded Idea At Tuesday Meeting

Substantial help in boosting the city's fire protection finances appeared to be waiting only for the asking Friday—and from a source that nearly received an official municipal brushoff.

City Safety Director Oscar Root said it is his understanding that a matching fund offer made by the federal government for Civil Defense purposes can also be turned to fire department improvements. Root and Pickaway County Civil Defense Director Bernard Tait pointed out the Civil Defense planning rests heavily on firefighting facilities.

Both officials said this point would be kept in mind when City Council is asked next Tuesday night to appropriate funds for Civil Defense. Such action by Council would bring additional funds from two other sources.

Pickaway County spokesmen have said the county will match an amount allocated by the city, and the federal government has offered to match the combined city-county appropriation. However, the federal offer expires the last day of April—a complicating detail in the event further study confirms that the federal offer could be used to bolster funds for firefighting improvements.

HOWEVER, OFFICIALS recalled the city nearly missed out on the federal offer altogether. Tait belatedly disclosed the matching fund offer when its deadline was extended to April 30. No request had been sent to Council earlier.

Thus given a second chance at the federal money, Council indicated last meeting it would appropriate "a few hundred dollars" at next Tuesday's session, presumably under suspension of rules to get in under the deadline.

The lawmakers at their last session had not yet been notified the proposition may also be used to purchase needed fire equipment. And assurances on this point, from Root and Tait, will come just at a time when Council is preparing to ask for a special "fire protection tax" on next November's ballot.

Whether the Civil Defense fund offer can be expanded to a degree that would help materially with the firefighting needs was not yet clear. Root and Tait said only they had been told that firefighting would come under the heading of Civil Defense expenses.

Meanwhile, Tait said he wanted to make it clear that any federal funds received here for Civil Defense can not be used to build up auxiliary police or firemen units. "It's just against the law to do that," he explained, "but of course the city-county allocation, what we appropriate ourselves, could be used in part for that purpose."

Council at its last meeting was a

Educators Seek More Discipline

DAYTON (AP)—A call for stricter discipline in high schools got little opposition from school officials meeting here yesterday.

Some 150 educators, participating in the Western Ohio Superintendents and Principals Roundtable, heard W. H. Ogden of Cincinnati Vocational High School, president of the group, say:

"Many teachers are throwing in the sponge because they are not allowed to meet the discipline problem sternly enough. The situation is becoming pitiful for teachers. They are faced with outright insubordination and nothing is being done about it."

FBI Joins Hunt For Missing Baby

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation have joined the hunt for 3-month-old Jamie Kemplin, missing since Tuesday.

The baby and a baby sister, Betty Doris Eggle, 36, disappeared after the Eggle woman had sent two other Kemplin children home after taking them to a restaurant.

The woman had been living in the Kemplin home and was taking care of the children while their mother, Mrs. Billy Marie Kemplin, 29, was at work. Mrs. Kemplin and her husband, Jasper Kemplin of Cincinnati, are separated.

Dems Warn GOP To Focus Probe On Past And Present

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three Democratic members said today they will fight any effort by the Republican-dominated Senate Banking Committee to focus on housing swindles which may have taken place in the Truman administration while glossing over irregularities under the Eisenhower regime.

Chairman Capehart (R-Ind) said there was no such intent on the part of the committee, which plans to start public hearings Monday into reports of a multi-million-dollar scandal.

The three Democrats, Senators

Douglas of Illinois, Lehman of New York and Maybank of South Carolina, said that so far they had noted a lack of emphasis on exorbitant fees said to have been charged home owners for repairs financed with loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA). Officials have said these irregularities have continued virtually up until the present.

The other principal aspect of the investigation (also being carried on by at least three agencies of the executive branch) involves FHA-insured loans to build big apartment houses.

THE SECTION of the act which authorized these loans expired in 1950, although some projects are said to be still under construction. The Internal Revenue Service announced last yesterday that 1,149 corporations got loans to build apartment houses which cost less than the amount of the loans, with the corporations pocketing the difference.

One result in many cases has been to force up rents in those projects, because the rents are tied to the size of the loan.

Capehart has said builders may have reaped a half-billion-dollar windfall under this program, designed to stimulate apartment buildings in the postwar years.

Douglas said: "It's perfectly natural for the Republicans to try and shift the blame to Harry Truman. We are certainly not going to try and cover up well-publicized abuses in apartment construction after World War II. But we're not going to allow the Republicans to divert attention from the currently scandalous operations."

Capehart said the question of partisan politics "hasn't entered my mind. There's no politics in this thing at all."

Maybank, senior Democrat on the Banking Committee, said Democrats had repeatedly warned of possible abuses in the apartment-project scandal and that he would not sit by and let the investigation turn to "whipping a dead dog."

120 Church Steps Climbed In Cincy

CINCINNATI (AP)—Many Cincinnati observers Good Friday by offering prayers as they climbed the 120 steps which lead to the immaculate Roman Catholic Church atop Mount Adams.

Mount Adams is a steep-sided hill which overlooks the downtown district and the Ohio River. The church, which dates from 1859, stands at its highest point.

It has been estimated as many as 50,000 persons climb the steps to the church, beginning promptly after midnight Thursday and after the pastor has blessed the steps.

Capitol Hill Highlights

By The Associated Press
Chairman Saltonstall (R-Mass) of the Senate Armed Services Committee and Sen. Russell (D-Ga), the group's senior Democrat, say the Eisenhower administration should explain to Congress any new promise to keep U. S. troops in Europe.

Saltonstall and Russell stress that they are not questioning any military decision, but Russell says that before any long-range commitments are made, Congress ought to know what Allied nations will contribute to Western Europe's defenses.

MCCARTHY - ARMY — A new squall blows up in the stormy row between Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and Army officials, but Sen. Mundt (R-SD) says he still hopes to open public hearings on schedule Thursday.

Roy M. Cohn, regular counsel of McCarthy's investigations subcommittee and a principal in the bitter feud, calls for a prehearing probe to find out who leaked details of an Army "bill of particulars" against the senator and his aides. Mundt is temporary chairman of the subcommittee during the extraordinary investigation of the McCarthy-Army charges.

Ohio Sales Tax Slips A Little

COLUMBUS (AP)—State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy reported today collections from sale of prepaid sales tax stamps continued to lag for the week of April 3 but not as much as in preceding weeks.

Collections for the week ending April 3 were $3,309,424, a decline of $216,093 from collections for the corresponding period last year.

"This compares favorably with the decline of $323,634 the previous week and of $416,227 two weeks ago," Tracy said.

Jap Farmer Insists Japan Victor In War

HONOLULU (AP)—A Japanese farmer, indicted for violating the immigration law, says Japan won World War II "and you can't make me believe otherwise."

The farmer, Kametoku Tomei, 64, was accused of refusing to file an annual alien address report in the U. S. attorney's office.

"Hawaii is a part of Japan," Tomei said. "Everything else is a pack of lies."

Tomei's children, all born here and U. S. citizens, left home several years ago. They were angered and embarrassed, said the eldest son, Shigemichi Tomei.

"We tried everything to explain the true situation to him," Shigemichi said. "He wouldn't believe us. I even offered him money to take a trip to Japan to see for himself but he refused."

Asked why U. S. law was in effect if Hawaii is part of Japan, the elder Tomei replied: "It takes time to set up a new administration but the Japanese administration will come within this year."

One of Tomei's sons was wounded in the Korean War, but the farmer said: "There was no Korean War. My son probably was injured in maneuvers."

Dr. Andrew W. Lind, professor of sociology at the University of Hawaii, said Tomei's attitude was the result of an "emotional crisis at VJ Day which drove some older generation Japanese to seek questionable mental security in delusions of Japanese victory."

The charge involved the shooting 14 months ago of his wife of five weeks.

Myhaver, 52, a victim of multiple sclerosis, appeared in Superior Court on a hospital stretcher and pleaded guilty to the charge. He heard the sentence with no outward display of emotion.

FEDERAL CASH MAY HELP FIRE NEEDS

Windshield Pocks Worrying Seattle

Federal Secrecy Hit By Publisher

Veil On Atomic Progress Cited, Freedom Of Information Sought

WASHINGTON (P)—Secrecy on atomic weapons progress has thrown civil defense planning into confusion and hindered development of a continental defense system, the American Society of Newspaper Editors was told today.

Paul Block Jr., co-publisher of the Toledo Blade, reported to some 400 editors at their annual meeting that despite recent hydrogen bomb revelations, atomic developments have outrun public information.

"The public appears to be relatively farther behind informationally than ever before," said Block, the society's one-man watchdog committee on atomic information.

The sensation created by Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss with his recent description of a 17-month-old hydrogen bomb explosion, Block said, raises the question "whether the people must not be told much more much sooner." He continued:

"Witness the confusion of the Federal Civil Defense Administration. The potential of the H-bomb required a major change in emphasis in the teachings of this organization."

"Now the watchword is 'evacuation' and the training of rescue units is pinned to the needs of rescuing other areas rather than one's own city."

"And what of the many stories about a cobalt bomb which would set off a rain of destruction by the dropping of radioactive materials many miles from the site of the explosion?"

A major question of national defense policy, the editor went on, is whether more money should be spent on continental defense.

"Clearly the answer to this is in the hands of the electorate," he said. "Does it have enough information on which to base a decision?"

Block's message was one section of a comprehensive report by the society's Committee on Freedom of Information headed by J. Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post.

General improvement in the information policy of federal agencies was reported, but Wiggins emphasized a need for a federal law to compel officials to divulge nonmilitary information if they refuse to do so voluntarily.

His committee deplored, in addition, the growing tendency of congressional committees to hold secret sessions. Forty per cent of the 3,105 committee and subcommittee meetings in the last session were held behind closed doors.

It commended efforts being made by various newspapermen to open up the legislative hearings and win enactment of freedom-of-information laws.

For The Story Behind "These Days" read Sokolsky

George E. Sokolsky, America's top writer in his field and author of the widely-read column, "These Days", calls attention today to a mass tendency of thinking which seems reconciled to a world future of strife and endless struggle.

It is, he writes, "the idea that the Christian era has terminated and that the next period in history will be the Russian version of Marxism."

For the far-reaching effects this concept can have on future generations, and for a keen analysis of how it developed, read "These Days" in today's issue of The Herald. It's one of the many leading features brought daily to The Herald's readers and appears regularly on the editorial page.

COHN MADE clear he was not referring to Sen. Symington (D-Mo), the subcommittee member who gave out the Army list of charges because of previous "piecemeal leaks" to newsmen about the Army document.

But in his call for an investigation of the matter, McCarthy said in Houston, Tex., that he was "very surprised that Symington violated the Senate rule." And he said any Pentagon officials who "leaked" parts of the report earlier should be cited for contempt.

The Army report, sent to the

Kidnap Case 'Hero' Guilty After Trial

KANSAS CITY (P)—A federal court jury has convicted Louis Shoulders, the veteran police officer who broke the Greenlee kidnapping case, of lying about the handling of the ransom money.

However, the federal offer expires the last day of April—a complicating detail in the event further study confirms that the federal offer could be used to bolster funds for firefighting improvements.

HOWEVER, OFFICIALS recalled the city nearly missed out on the federal offer altogether. Tait belatedly disclosed the matching fund offer when its deadline was extended to April 30. No request had been sent to Council earlier.

Thus given a second chance at the federal money, Council indicated last meeting it would appropriate "a few hundred dollars" at next Tuesday's session, presumably under suspension of rules to get in under the deadline.

The lawmakers at their last session had not yet been notified the proposition may also be used to purchase needed fire equipment. And assurances on this point, from Root and Tait, will come just at a time when Council is preparing to ask for a special "fire protection tax" on next November's ballot.

Whether the Civil Defense fund offer can be expanded to a degree that would help materially with the firefighting needs was not yet clear. Root and Tait said only they had been told that firefighting would come under the heading of Civil Defense expenses.

Meanwhile, Tait said he wanted to make it clear that any federal funds received here for Civil Defense can not be used to build up auxiliary police or firemen units. "It's just against the law to do that," he explained, "but of course the city-county allocation, what we appropriate ourselves, could be used in part for that purpose."

Council at its last meeting was a

Educators Seek More Discipline

DAYTON (P)—A call for stricter discipline in high schools got little opposition from school officials meeting here yesterday.

Some 150 educators, participating in the Western Ohio Superintendents and Principals Roundtable, heard W. H. Ogden of Cincinnati Vocational High School, president of the group, say:

"Many teachers are throwing in the sponge because they are not allowed to meet the discipline problem sternly enough. The situation is becoming pitiful for teachers. They are faced with outright insubordination and nothing is being done about it."

FBI Joins Hunt For Missing Baby

NEWPORT, Ky. (P)—Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation have joined the hunt for 3-month-old Janie Marie Kemplin, missing since Tuesday.

The baby and a baby sitter, Betty Doris Eglee, 36, disappeared after the Eglee woman had sent two other Kemplin children home after taking them to a restaurant.

Dems Warn GOP To Focus Probe On Past And Present

WASHINGTON (P)—Three Democratic members said today they will fight any effort by the Republican-dominated Senate Banking Committee to focus on housing scandals which may have taken place in the Truman administration while glossing irregularities under the Eisenhower regime.

Chairman Capehart (R-Ind) said there was no such intent on the part of the committee, which plans to start public hearings Monday into reports of a multi-million-dollar scandal.

The three Democrats, Senators

Douglas of Illinois, Lehman of New York and Maybank of South Carolina, said that so far they had noted a lack of emphasis on exorbitant fees said to have been charged home owners for repairs financed with loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA). Officials have said these irregularities have continued virtually up until the present.

The other principal aspect of the investigation (also being carried on by at least three agencies of the executive branch) involves FHA-insured loans to build big apartment houses.

THE SECTION of the act which authorized these loans expired in 1950, although some projects are said to be still under construction.

The Internal Revenue Service announced last yesterday that 1,149 corporations got loans to build apartment houses which cost less than the amount of the loans, with the corporations pocketing the difference.

One result in many cases has been to force up rents in those projects, because the rents are tied to the size of the loan.

Capehart has said builders may have reaped a half-billion-dollar windfall under this program, designed to stimulate apartment buildings in the postwar years.

Douglas said: "It's perfectly natural for the Republicans to try and shift the blame to Harry Truman. We are certainly not going to try and cover up well-publicized abuses in apartment construction after World War II. But we're not going to allow the Republicans to divert attention from the currently scandalous operations."

Capehart said the question of partisan politics "hasn't entered my mind. There's no politics in this thing at all."

Maybank, senior Democrat on the Banking Committee, said Democrats had repeatedly warned of possible abuses in the apartment-project scandal and that he would not sit by and let the investigation turn to "whipping a dead dog."

120 Church Steps Climbed In Cincy

CINCINNATI (P)—Many Cincinnati Catholics observed Good Friday by offering prayers as they climbed the 120 steps which lead to the immaculate Roman Catholic Church atop Mount Adams.

Mount Adams is a steep-sided hill which overlooks the downtown district and the Ohio River. The church, which dates from 1859, stands at its highest point.

It has been estimated as many as 50,000 persons climb the steps to the church, beginning promptly after midnight Thursday and after the pastor has blessed the steps.

Park Opening Set

COLUMBUS (P)—State parks in Ohio will open officially May 1, D. W. Flickinger, chief of the division of parks, reports.

Roman Church Holds Rites On Good Friday

VATICAN CITY (P)—Gloomy, cloudy skies contributed today to the somber atmosphere around Good Friday services marking Christ's death on the cross.

In St. Peter's Basilica, thousands of Roman Catholics from many lands took part in centuries-old ceremonies that included the mass of the presanctified host and the adoration of the cross.

In the latter, Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, archpriest of the Basilica, walked barefoot on the cold stones of the world's largest church and knelt to kiss the foot of a small crucifix placed on a pillow at the base of a side altar.

The altar was at the side of the great confessional central altar, which was washed yesterday in Holy Thursday services commemorating Christ's establishment of the eucharist at the Last Supper.

Earlier today, Cardinal Tedeschini officiated at the mass of the presanctified, a skeletal ceremony of the mass in which an eucharistic host, consecrated the preceding day, is consumed by the celebrant. This host was placed yesterday in a flower-decked "sepulcher," symbolic of the dead and buried Christ.

Similar services were held in most of Rome's nearly 500 churches many of them thronged with Romans and the biggest influx of tourists and pilgrims ever to come to Rome for Easter.

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano announced the 78-year-old pontiff, who is convalescing from a severe gastric ailment, would deliver a radio message to the world at 6 a. m. EST) Sunday.

Cop House Door Finally Returned

STEVENSVILLE (P)—Police had the door to their headquarters back in place today.

Whoever swiped it must have spotted the lettering, "POLICE HEADQUARTERS," and decided he acted unwisely.

Unhinged for painting, the door was taken from a spot 20 feet from the police office in the City Hall.

It was found at the same place yesterday.

glycerine. Rebel troops then rushed in and furiously hacked out a system of connecting trenches.

The Vietnam also kept up their steady digging around the outskirts of the Dien Bien Phu plain today, relentlessly pushing their web of trenches and foxholes closer to the French barbed wire barricades.

General Giap was believed to have rounded up his reinforcements by beating the jungles throughout northern Indochina.

APPARENTLY he even drew on the regulars who have been fanning out in repeated scattered attacks against the French and their Vietnamese allies in the vital Red River delta, about 150 miles to the east.

The French gave no information on the numbers of defenders they still have at Dien Bien Phu after the five weeks of pounding. The high command here said only that none of the fortress' six main defense positions had suffered any food or ammunition shortages.

All supplies and reinforcements for the garrison of several thousand men must be parachuted in. The remote fortress is completely surrounded by the enemy, and constant artillery bombardment makes its two airstrips unusable, even for removal of wounded.

2 Yank Carriers Cruise China Sea

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department acknowledged yesterday that the U. S. carriers Boxer and Essex have been operating in the South China Sea between the Philippines and Indochina, but there was no indication the carriers' planes would be thrown into the critical Indochina fight. Officials said the ships had moved into the area for training a month ago to take advantage of good weather.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, in an appearance at a closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, reportedly denied reports the U. S. was considering sending combat air and naval forces to aid the French.

Courthouse Lift Bringing Dispute

COLUMBUS (AP)—Marion County commissioners today appealed to the Ohio Supreme Court from an order to install an elevator in the courthouse. Common pleas court ordered the elevator installed by last March 1 at the request of the Marion County Bar Assn. for "adequate court facilities."

An appellate court affirmed the order. Commissioners appealed on grounds the lower court exceeded its authority.

Driver Doused With Paint In Auto Collision

Three of four persons involved in a two-car collision near Mt. Sterling Thursday night suffered light injuries, but the accident had extra grief for one of the drivers.

The driver, Paul D. Stanforth, 37, of Washington C. H., was virtually doused with white paint, jolted out of cans he was hauling when his vehicle bumped into the rear of another car. The accident occurred three miles north of Mt. Sterling on Route 62.

State Patrolman Bob Greene, who investigated the crash and aided the injured, reported Stanforth's station wagon ran into the rear of a machine driven by Kenneth R. Bidwell, 25, of near Orient. Bidwell had stopped to make a turn just prior to the mishap, Greene said.

Bidwell escaped unhurt, but his wife, Phyllis, 22, suffered a sprained back. A passenger with Stanforth, Joseph A. Stanforth, 34, also of Washington C. H., suffered lacerations of the face and a possible broken nose. Stanforth, the driver of the station wagon, received cuts on the knee.

Ladders being carried on the station wagon went sliding off to one side of the highway under impact of the collision. And the canned white paint "hit the driver square in the back, burst open and went all over him."

Elyria-Turnpike Hearing Booked

COLUMBUS (AP)—The legal battle between Elyria and the Ohio Turnpike Commission will get further airing next Thursday before the Ohio Supreme Court.

The commission is trying to force the city to say where utilities and streets should be relocated when the Northern Ohio Turnpike is routed through the northern edge of Elyria. The city has refused to supply the data—blocking contracting for construction of the last four miles of the 241-mile highway.

The Supreme Court allowed a turnpike commission request for a rehearing on the matter.

Good Year Seen By Armco Chief

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—Chairman Charles R. Hook told stockholders of Armco Steel Corp. yesterday the company is looking forward to a relatively good year in 1954.

"Although final first quarter figures are not yet available," he said, "I can say that Armco did somewhat better in the first three months of 1954 than in 1953."

Armco's net income for the first quarter of 1953 was $7,767,050, or $1.49 per share of common stock. "Steel is now being consumed at a faster rate than it is being produced," Hook said, "and there are indications that steel demand will soon take an upturn."

He stressed the point that high school students more than ever

Tait said Civil Defense booklets will be handed out free to the downtown shoppers Saturday. Boy Scouts will distribute the literature, he said, in the vicinity of the Court-and-Main intersection.

Inmate Fined For Breaking Jail Windows

City police disclosed that an overnight visitor to the city jail took his wrath out on the windows Thursday, breaking six of them.

For his efforts, Merle Ankrom, 33, of Circleville, was fined $100 and costs in Municipal Court. Judge Sterling Lamb suspended $50 of the fine.

Ankrom was in jail as result of his arrest by Sgt. Turney Ross on a charge of intoxication. Judge Lamb also fined Ankrom $10 and costs for that offense.

Three other cases were included on the Thursday court docket. In one, a soldier from Ft. Lee, Va., was fined $10 and costs for failing to have proper registration. Richard A. Bender, 24, Kalamazoo, Mich., had been arrested by Officer Lud Mills.

James I. Bosley, 20, of Lockbourne Air Force Base, was fined $25 and costs for reckless operation. He also was arrested by Mills.

David E. Ramsey, 36, of Chillicothe, was fined $100 and costs, sentenced to three days in jail, and his operator's license was suspended for six months when he was found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. He was arrested by State Patrolman Bob Greene.

Three of four persons involved in a two-car collision near Mt. Sterling Thursday night suffered light injuries, but the accident had extra grief for one of the drivers.

The driver, Paul D. Stanforth, 37, of Washington C. H., was virtually doused with white paint, jolted out of cans he was hauling when his vehicle bumped into the rear of another car. The accident occurred three miles north of Mt. Sterling on Route 62.

State Patrolman Bob Greene, who investigated the crash and aided the injured, reported Stanforth's station wagon ran into the rear of a machine driven by Kenneth R. Bidwell, 25, of near Orient. Bidwell had stopped to make a turn just prior to the mishap, Greene said.

Bidwell escaped unhurt, but his wife, Phyllis, 22, suffered a sprained back. A passenger with Stanforth, Joseph A. Stanforth, 34, also of Washington C. H., suffered lacerations of the face and a possible broken nose. Stanforth, the driver of the station wagon, received cuts on the knee.

Ladders being carried on the station wagon went sliding off to one side of the highway under impact of the collision. And the canned white paint "hit the driver square in the back, burst open and went all over him."

Elyria-Turnpike Hearing Booked

COLUMBUS (AP)—The legal battle between Elyria and the Ohio Turnpike Commission will get further airing next Thursday before the Ohio Supreme Court.

The commission is trying to force the city to say where utilities and streets should be relocated when the Northern Ohio Turnpike is routed through the northern edge of Elyria. The city has refused to supply the data—blocking contracting for construction of the last four miles of the 241-mile highway.

The Supreme Court allowed a turnpike commission request for a rehearing on the matter.

Good Year Seen By Armco Chief

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—Chairman Charles R. Hook told stockholders of Armco Steel Corp. yesterday the company is looking forward to a relatively good year in 1954.

"Although final first quarter figures are not yet available," he said, "I can say that Armco did somewhat better in the first three months of 1954 than in 1953."

Armco's net income for the first quarter of 1953 was $7,767,050, or $1.49 per share of common stock. "Steel is now being consumed at a faster rate than it is being produced," Hook said, "and there are indications that steel demand will soon take an upturn."

Modern High School Students Seen More Alert To College

The president of Capital University declared in a Circleville Rotary Club luncheon talk Thursday that high school students during the past 10 years have become more serious about a college education.

Dr. Harold L. Yochum, head of the Columbus school, said the trend has been especially strong among the pre-college students since the days of World War II. Dr. Yochum spoke on "What's With Higher Education?"

He stressed the point that high school students more than ever value the opportunity to get a college education because of the gradual tightening in competition for modern day jobs. And as a result of this increased interest in higher education, the Capital University president added, colleges throughout the country are hard pressed for facilities and qualified teaching personnel.

Taking his own school as illustration of costs to the college, Dr. Yochum said the average cost of educating a student at Capital is $630 a year, of which the student pays approximately $400. The difference in costs to the school, he explained, has to be covered by income from endowments and church contributions.

DR. YOCHUM pointed out this problem, in varying form, faces all the schools of higher learning today. And he warned the situation will get a good deal worse before it gets better.

Yet, he reminded his listeners, "there are no higher values than human values," and the problem is one tied closely to America's future as a nation.

Student guests at the Rotary luncheon were Bill Hempker and Dave Hoffman.

Stop Sign Missed, Two Cars Collide

Two accidents were reported Thursday by the sheriff's department here. Harold O. Timmins, of Amanda, ran a stop sign at Scioto St. and Madison at 8:30 p. m. in Ashville and crashed into a car driven by Stanley Lee Reese, 17, of Ashville, according to the sheriff's reports.

Timmins admitted to Deputy Carl Radcliff that he did not see the stop sign or the other car. Reese said he did not see Timmins' car until it was too late. There was light damage to both cars.

Two cars, traveling in opposite directions, collided on a narrow road at the crest of a hill at 2:40 p. m. Raymond Carlton, 18, of Stoutsville, and Charles W. Wright, 31, both told identical stories to Deputy Carl White. Both claimed they were in their respective lanes approaching the crest. The road was too narrow and they both hit before they could do anything, they told the deputy.

The accident occurred one-fourth mile southwest of Warner and Nuffer Roads.

Running Stop Sign Causes Car Crash

One accident was reported by city police Thursday. At 12:40 p. m., a car driven by an 18-year-old Williamsport youth ran a stop sign and collided with another car, according to Officer Charles Smith.

Richard E. Reeser crashed into a car driven by Dessell S. Fyffe, 30, of Circleville at the intersection of S. Washington and E. Corwin Sts. The front ends of both cars were damaged.

Ashville Company Victim Of Breakin

Erv Leist To Join Water Study Group

Ervin Leist, manager of the city Water and Sewage Department, accepted Friday a place on a committee appointed by Governor Frank Lausche to study the state's water problems.

The committee is being formed to survey the state's water problems "present and future", and will assemble for its first meeting at the governor's office in Columbus on May 11.

Lausche has warned that unless special steps are taken to conserve Ohio's dwindling water supplies, the statewide situation will become acute.

In addition to his municipal post, Leist is chairman of the Ohio Section of the American Water Works Association.

SIX LETTERS TO LUCILLA

To My Beloved Wife Lucilla:

It is done. All is finished. They have crucified Jesus! I would not, could not believe this had not mine own eyes witnessed this greatest of all crimes.

Yesterday, when I departed from the judgment hall of the Procurator Pilate it was my belief that since Jesus was obviously innocent of any of the charges made against the Nazarene the sentence would be one of only mild confinement or exile.

Imagine, then, my dear Lucilla, my great shock and horror when I learned late today what had really transpired.

I had been confined to my apartments at the villa with a mild disorder and thus was ignorant of what was taking place in the city. The day was well advanced when suddenly it grew dark and a servant brought torches to my room to dispel the gloom.

Suddenly, the earth shook as though disturbed by a mighty hand. This was followed by a tremendous flash of lightning and a most fearful thunderclap.

Shortly thereafter Carus the centurion burst through the drapes that shielded my room from the atrium.

"They have slain the Nazarene," he cried. "The Man from Nazareth has been crucified!" When I looked my disbelief Carus urged: "Arise, sir—and accompany me, and I will show you that this is only too true."

Swiftly I dressed and soon we were hastening across the city to that place of execution which is called by the natives Golgotha, that is, the Place of Skulls.

And there—between two criminals—hung the Nazarene from a cross beneath which several women in mourning knelt in their grief, closely watched by a detachment of soldiers on guard post. I have sketched the scene for you.

I took one look at Jesus' face, white and still beneath a brutal crown of thorns forced into the brow. I knew then—life had already taken wing.

As I stood in the shadow of that dreadful cross a great sense of guilt came upon me. A word from me might have swayed the Procurator from his action. Now—too late. It is with great grief, I close.

Your faithful husband,

ARIUS.

Newsboy Halts Traffic In Work

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Adolph Schwartzkopf, a news vendor, appeared before City Judge Robert G. Dowd yesterday on charges of blocking traffic by running into the street to sell papers to motorists.

Said Schwartzkopf: "I don't weave in and out of traffic. I push that button and stop the traffic." He told the court a traffic signal at the corner has a manually-controlled "walk" light. Judge Dowd asked: "You mean you stop this traffic every time you want to run out and sell a paper?"

The news vendor replied: "Sure. How else am I going to get into the street if I don't?" Judge Dowd fined Schwartzkopf $25, but stopped payment on this condition:

"You stay out of the street and don't be pushing that button any more."

Good Friday Sees Flower Industry Boom

Tons Of Choice Blooms Sent By Californians Throughout Nation

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Good Friday sees a great outpouring of flowers from California's 50 million dollar a year "hothouse" to help brighten the nation's Easter.

Tons of choice blooms have been speeding eastward for a week—by chartered plane, by common air carriers' regular and extra cargo planes, in countless rail cars, and for shorter distances by refrigerated trucks.

Growers, estimating the tonnage volume today, say it has equalled and perhaps topped last year's.

Value of the airborne Easter flowers alone is estimated to be more than one million dollars. Dealers say that is about equal to last year's, taking into consideration a slight price drop.

Flowers moving for Easter are mostly the hothouse variety—expensive orchids, roses, gardenias, carnations—and their prices are holding up fairly well.

It may be a different story next month when California will ship out a huge volume of field-grown posies for Mother's Day, at prices expected to be lower than last year.

Exotic flowers are also speeding eastward from Hawaii for the nation's fashion parades. And lilies are flying to the United States from Bermuda as the nation prepares for the observances of the religious festival.

California's total flower shipment figures are hard to come by, but the principal outlets add up to impressive sums.

Consolidated Flower Shipments Inc., a cooperative with 38 member growers in the San Francisco Bay area, chartered a plane for two flights of flowers, of 6 tons each, to points as far away as Tampa and Memphis.

It was also sending 15 tons a day by common air carriers, starting last Saturday.

Airborne Flower Freight Traffic Inc., however, says airborne posies may be fewer this Easter than last, although it estimates that shipments by other forms of transportation probably increased. It lays this to a rise in air freight rates on flowers. Even so, it estimates around three-fourths of a million pounds of flowers left San Francisco airport this week, with a total value in excess of one million dollars.

The airlines, however, insist their tonnage total will be higher than ever.

New Jet 'Brake' Said Perfected

NEW YORK (AP)—A new jet engine "brake," providing action similar to that of reversible propellers used to slow up piston-powered planes, may make it possible for all types of jet aircraft to land at existing airports.

The device was described yesterday by Joseph F. Suten, an aerodynamics engineer with the Boeing Airplane Co., which developed it.

The braking effect is produced by a cap over the tail pipe which directs the normally back-sputtering jet stream forward.

Ex-Professor Dies

ADA (AP)—Dr. C. Harold Freeman, who retired two years ago after 44 years as head of the United States department at Ohio Northern University, died yesterday. He was 81.

Director's Fall Fails Stop Opera

NEW YORK (AP)—Opera director Otto Erhardt was hustling about the City Center Theater stage yesterday during rehearsal of Verdi's "Falstaff."

He missed his footing, fell off stage into the orchestra pit and landed in a kettledrum.

Before being taken away for treatment of a sprained back and ankle, the 200-pound director shouted at the startled singers:

"Go on, don't mind me. You've got a performance tonight."

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Emigrant organizations estimate that more than 685,000 persons are held in labor camps in six European Communist countries—Czechoslovakia, Poland, Lithuania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Albania.

They made public their figures in connection with a debate on forced labor expected early next week in the 18-nation U.N. economic and Social Council.

By SAUL PETT

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—After all the furious debate, how strong is Sen. Joseph McCarthy in Wisconsin today?

Barring a special recall election, he will not come up for re-election in Wisconsin until 1958. But, if he were running this year, could he win again where it counts most, among the people who already have given him two Senate terms?

Seeking the answers, as of today, I talked with political figures, editors and people on both sides of the McCarthy fence. I found no one even among the senator's bitterest opponents, who was ready to bet that he couldn't win re-election this year. Some say he is stronger; some say he is weaker; some say it would be a close race. But no one says he would lose.

There is a disposition to be cautious in appraising the recent special recall election petition begun by LeRoy Gore, editor of the weekly Sauk Prairie Star.

At a recent meeting, at which organizational plans were made for the "Joe Must Go" movement, reporters found that a heavy majority of the 500 people present were Democrats to begin with. Wisconsin has had only one Democratic senator since 1932 and very few before that. Many people believe that if anyone is going to lick McCarthy in his own state, it will have to be a Republican, in a primary.

That meeting did select an eight-man steering committee, most of them Republican. It is headed by Harold Michael, Republican chairman of Polk County.

The recall move poses several possible complications. First it must get 404,000 names. Then it undoubtedly would run into a court fight over the basic legal question: Once elected, can a member of Congress be removed by anyone but Congress?

Assuming these complications are resolved, the special recall election would then be held on a "sudden death" basis. There would be no primary. McCarthy's name would automatically go on the ballot. He would be opposed by as many candidates as could get the required 3,000 signatures on a petition for them to appear on the ballot. The winner in this "free-for-all" election would be declared elected to the Senate.

"McCarthy," said one of his most powerful critics in Milwaukee, "could rig the election. He could see to it that four or five people run against him and that would split the anti-McCarthy vote."

"And wouldn't it be disastrous, especially now, if Joe McCarthy were to get a vote of confidence from his own state?"

In the 1952 GOP primary, McCarthy won in a six-man field with 515,489 votes. His nearest Republican opponent, Leonard F. Schmitt, got 213,701 out of a total GOP vote of 759,000. The total vote in the Democratic primary, with only two men running, was 181,000. Thus, McCarthy polled more votes than all other candidates in both primaries combined.

However, in the general election of 1952, McCarthy's edge over his Democratic opponent, Thomas E. Fairchild, was only 139,000. This was about 102,000 below his winning margin in 1946. In 1952, McCarthy trailed the entire Republican state ticket and was far behind President Eisenhower, who had a plurality of 357,000.

"It was obvious that the people of Wisconsin . . . were catching on to his demagoguery," Editor William T. Evjue, who has fought McCarthy consistently, wrote in the Capital Times of Madison.

Tom Coleman, a McCarthy supporter and one of the most powerful Republicans in the state, said, however, that the only reason McCarthy didn't do as well in 1952 was that he didn't campaign much in his own state.

"If he were running again this year," said Coleman, "he'd be re-elected. Joe stands well here despite the barrage of New Dealers and the leftwing press and radio."

" . . . People here just don't believe the stories printed about him. And keep in mind the enormous publicity he has received. For four solid years, one issue—the fight against communism—has been primarily identified with one person and has received more sustained attention than any other example I can think of in our political history."

" . . . And, then, many of the attacks against him have been on the basis of what's the matter with the people of Wisconsin, why do they send such a man to the Senate? That's resented here and doesn't hurt Joe any."

Coleman was floor manager for the late Sen. Robert A. Taft in his unsuccessful bid for the GOP presidential nomination in 1952.

Evjue, on the other hand, is certain McCarthy would prove weaker if he were running this year. Evjue believes that the senator never had a real test of his strength in Wisconsin; that he won in 1946 because the liberals were split and in 1952 rode in on "Eisenhower's coattails."

"It'd be a close race now," said the editor. "I know many business people who now think McCarthy has gone too far."

"And there are many people in all fields who are beginning to think that McCarthy is the third senator from Texas. He's never done anything for the farm or labor elements in this state. He did nothing on the St. Lawrence seaway project, which is so important here."

But at a recent meeting in Omaha, Wisconsin State GOP Chairman Robert L. Pierce said that if President Eisenhower were to make an all-out attack on McCarthy now it would probably hurt the President's standing in Wisconsin. He implied it would not hurt the senator.

One highly placed Republican in Madison, who has differed with McCarthy at times, said he thought the senator would "prove stronger" in an election this year.

"True or false," he said, "many people here are convinced he has exposed many Communists. His name is now known by everyone, even the school kids. And they are inclined to see him as a victim."

of persecution by what they call leftwingers."

This source said that McCarthy's strength in Wisconsin "basically stems from the ultra-conservative or Taft wing" of the party.

"The people of Wisconsin," he said, "are no more prone to hysteria about communism than anyone else. But when the issue of anticommunism is so identified with one man, the way it is with McCarthy, it's bound to have a broad appeal."

This high Republican source pointed out that McCarthy's critics should not underestimate his talents as a speaker and the hold he has on his audiences. He added: "I appeared with him in 1950. I remember at one place, we went into a tavern and people came up with tears in their eyes to shake his hand."

"At Portage, he addressed an open-air meeting. It was very cold and most of the 3,000 people there were shivering. McCarthy made the same speech he has made 50 times, but no one left."

"Once, he was talking to a large Milwaukee crowd when he mentioned that a reporter from the Milwaukee Journal (which has fought McCarthy consistently) was present. The result was frightening. I heard many people asking, 'Where is he, where is he?' I had the feeling that, if McCarthy had given the word, the crowd would have torn the reporter apart."

However, it is also true that in the 1952 election, McCarthy failed to carry Milwaukee, Dane and Sheboygan counties—three areas in which he has been opposed by the Milwaukee Journal, Capital Times and Sheboygan Press. Of the state's 39 daily papers, only these three have consistently opposed the senator.

In his own home town, Appleton, McCarthy has lost some supporters, reportedly even some financial backers, because of his attack on Nathan Pusey. Pusey, who pub-

In Spring A Girl's Fancy Turns To Thoughts Of Catching A Man

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It is sad to think of spring when lovely girls are sad.

Particularly in April, when a man still has last winter's arthritis on his mind.

Somehow there seem to be more sad girls than usual this spring, though their dresses are bright as always, and as they paw at their purses while holding up the homeward bus, they make a fair statue against the twilight sun.

What makes so many lovely girls sad? They are yearning for a man. Yes, a gentle male husband who will meet them at the door, his arms aching with tenderness and a sack of potatoes he has lugged home from the market.

That is what every lovely girl in her bright spring dress really wants—just coming home to the worn figure of a husband who has looted the world for her, in a grocery store. At least that is all she needs to make her happy, even if she doesn't know it.

But, as a cranky middle-aged old veteran of the supermarkets myself, I will tell you why so many girls in bright dresses are sad this spring. And every spring. They are not willing to settle for a proud, poor, honest and occasionally horse-playing husband who is tamely willing to make himself a grocery boy for her.

That isn't enough for them. They want to start married life at the top and go on right up from there in a world of ever-towering bliss.

They speak of mink coats and a guy with steady money instead of a guy with a steady job, and often make a brief and wakeful surrender to a fellow with a mouth full of promises instead of a man with a mouth full of heart.

The lovely said girls in their bright spring dresses . . . they are all across America today.

But most of those who have that "are-you-a-millionaire" look in their eyes seem to gather in towns like New York. Maybe one of 10,000 does meet and marry a millionaire, and a dream comes true (and perhaps goes on to become a nightmare).

But why should a sensible millionaire want to marry one of the sad sweet girls of spring, waiting in a bright dress for his money?

How many girls are wistful?

Sometime people will read a new fairy story—Cinderella, unsought by a prince, married the hotel bootblack because that was the only guy she deserved. But by good luck she got him the job of night attendant in the men's room where he made enough tips to send their kids to college.

Until this is done, won't every spring bring out more sad young lovely girls in bright dresses?

The McCarthy Story: Is He Still Popular?

Editor's Note: Following is the last in a series of ten articles on Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) and the who, what and where of McCarthyism.

Treasure House Of Our Biblical Past

By RAY A. LAJOIE

Central Press Correspondent

THE YOUNG MAN called Erdem hoisted a bulky pack onto the shoulders of his companion, Mehmet, and off they went, side by side. Little did these Turkish lads realize, though, that they were walking in the historic steps of another young man who quit that very city some 2,000 years before them.

Although he did not know it then, that young man of 2,000 years ago had a world to conquer. Like Erdem and Mehmet, the city he left was Tarsus. His name? Saul. Or better still, great St. Paul of biblical immortality!

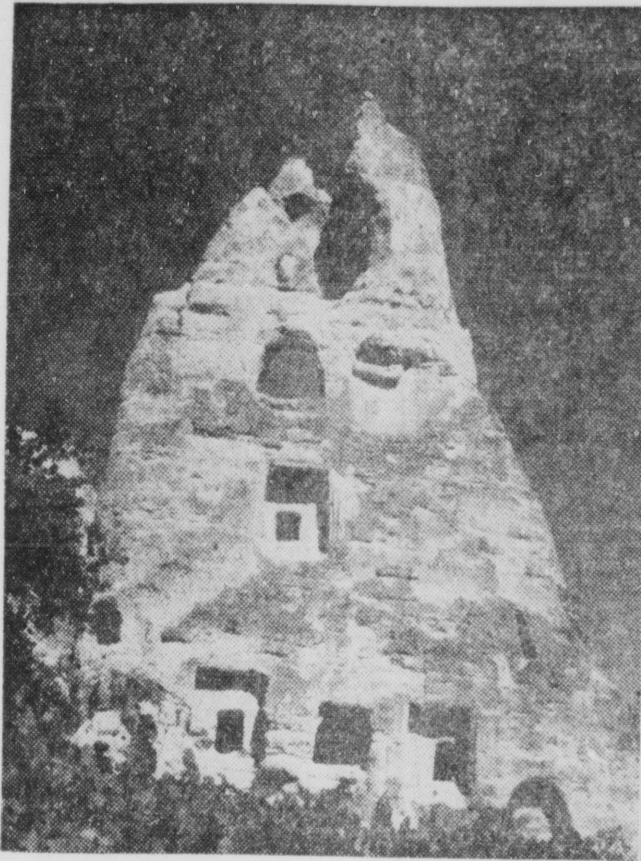

In those days of long ago, Tarsus was one of the great cities of the world. Its busy harbor was filled with ships that plied the Mediterranean waters. Even St. Paul spoke proudly of being a "citizen of no mean city." But today, centuries later, the greatness of Tarsus lies in its vivid memories and precious remains. And it is typical of the cities and towns of Turkey.

Turkey is a land steeped in biblical tradition. From Mount Ararat, where the Ark of Noah foundered, to the western border, where it touches Greece, the country abounds in precious religious sites. Everywhere, the progress of Christianity is indelibly written in cities, hamlets and towns where the early Christians lived and suffered.

LAST SUMMER, an American related the surprise that followed when, while wandering along a road outside Ephesus, he took shelter from the rain in a little stone house. Inside, he noticed a number of people devoutly praying. The scene greatly surprised him. The place did not appear to be a church at all, although he did notice a well-kept altar. What a profound experience it was to discover, he said, that this simple shrine was the restored ruin of the very house where the Blessed Virgin Mary, according to tradition, spent her last days on earth!

This city of Ephesus is no ordinary historic site. It is, as one visiting priest put it, "the most spectacular-ruin you could imagine." The reason is obvious. Built almost entirely of pure white marble, the old city glows like a brilliant stone in the golden sun of day. Two thousand years ago, before earthquakes, the elements and time took their heavy tolls, almost a million people lived within the confines of the ancient, bustling city.

What memories, pagan, then Christian, Ephesus conjures up. At the beginning of the Christian era, a half-million pagans journeyed to Ephesus each year to pay homage at the Temple of Diana, one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World. Wild festivities in worship to the Moon Goddess kept the city in a high-pitched state of excitement. In the amphitheater, which still stands, 25,000 people screamed their approval of bloody pagan rites.

Driven from their homes by persecutors, Third Century Christians settled at Urgan in a valley dotted by strange lava formations. Here they hewed new homes and churches like those above from the lava.

Altar (right) has been built in the modest house near Ephesus where the Virgin Mary spent her last days.

And within the very sound of that roaring crowd, a lone, but powerful, voice was raised. It was that of the great apostle St. Paul. And in the midst of the license that marked the life of the magnificent city, the Apostle wrote the brilliant, soul-stirring First and Second Corinthians. Later, cruelly driven into exile by the enraged devotees of the goddess, St. Paul embarked on his first great Christian mission.

VISITORS to Ephesus miss a memorable treat if they do not see the nearby Cave of the Seven Sleepers. Legend has it that, at the time of Emperor Decius in the Third century after Christ, seven Christian youths hid in the cave to escape their Roman pursuers. The soldiers found them, however, blocked up the entrance and left them there to die. A tablet tells how a passing shepherd, some 200 years later, unblocked the entrance to the catacomb and awoke the "sleepers," who walked forth miraculously unharmed.

Urgan, known in ancient times as Cappadocia, is one of the greatest natural wonders of the world, and it is also another of Turkey's priceless Christian relics. Tens of thousands of cones, pyramids and minarets, formed by the wind and rain of centuries on hardened lava formations, dot a valley that covers nearly 150 square miles.

Early Christians, fleeing from pagan persecutors, made their way into these formations, hewing out houses and churches and chapels, which they beautified with mosaics and murals in endless variety.

IT IS BELIEVED that the first wave of religious refugees arrived in Urgan in the Third century, and were followed by others in the Seventh, although some of the churches have been identified as being of the Eighth and early Ninth centuries.

Situated 52 miles from Kayseri (Caesarea), the marvels of Urgan are the proud boast of all living in Turkey today.

Last June a group of American students arrived at Turkey's Mediterranean port of Iskenderun only to find that they had missed their intended ship by several hours. On being informed that another ship was not due for several days, they decided on a sightseeing expedition. A hotel manager suggested a short, 25-mile bus trip to Antakya where, because of its altitude, the weather is pleasantly cool all summer long.

Soon, the group arrived at their destination. But the name "Antakya" meant nothing whatsoever to them. Then, at a restaurant, an English-speaking waiter explained, "You Americans would call this place Antioch."

Surprises like that are always happening to those who travel in Turkey. Antioch was the place where the followers of Christ first called themselves Christians, and where the Great Chalice of An-tioc, believed by some to be the Holy Grail, was unearthed.

The remains of the ancient city walls are still to be seen, as are those of the theater, the aqueduct and the castle. Antioch, the birthplace of St. Luke, was also the starting point for many a great missionary endeavor. Saints Barnaby and Paul also walked the streets of Antioch and, what is more, St. Luke proclaimed it in the Acts of the Apostles.

That wasn't all. The students found their way into a cave on the western slope of Mount Starvis where, almost 2,000 years before, St. Peter preached to the people!

ELSEWHERE in Turkey are spectacular Pergamum, atop a precipitous mountain which the Revelations called Satan's Seat; Laodicea, with its ruins; Philadelphia, Sardis and Smyrna, now Ismir, with their ancient churches.

Ships are bringing visitors from all parts of the world to the ancient church of St. Nicholas, seat of the Bishop of Myra—the inspiration of our Santa Claus—and to Istanbul, where the 1,500-year-old St. Sophia church was consecrated in the Sixth century by the Roman Emperor Justinian, whose court lay 1,000 miles east of Rome.

Perhaps the greatest thrill for the traveller to Turkey, the land of biblical sites, is the feeling that he is re-living the days of the early Christian.

It is a feeling that constantly preoccupies the traveller. Here is a country, one finds himself saying, in which it is easy indeed to pray.

Quirk Is Seen In Ohio Auto License Law

Attorneys Say Plate On Front Not Required By Revised Statute

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Attorneys think a quirk in Ohio's revised motor vehicle license laws fails to require license tags on the front of automobiles and other motor vehicles.

The Legislature changed the motor vehicle license laws and state officials ordered front and rear plates on cars after April 1, following a year's use of only rear tags.

But legal authorities think there's a gimmick in the revised statutes that went into effect Oct. 1.

The new code of laws lists two changes in a section (4503.21) made after the general revision. Both amendments became effective Oct. 2.

One amendment sponsored by Rep. T. K. Owens (R-Jackson) was signed into law by Gov. Frank J. Lausche June 24. The amendment reads:

"No person who is the owner of a motor vehicle . . . shall fail to display the distinctive number and registration mark furnished by the director of highways for such motor vehicle, house trailer, trailer or semi-trailer on the rear thereof. . . ."

The amendment removed the word "front" from the old law along with some other language. Listed also under the same section of the revised code is this amendment sponsored by Reps. Newton B. Chapman (R-Geauga) and Kenneth F. Berry (R-Coshocton):

"No person who is the owner of a motor vehicle . . . shall fail to display the distinctive number and registration mark furnished by the director of highway safety . . . on the front and rear thereof. . . ."

The Chapman-Berry amendment was signed into law June 6. It refers to the new director of highway safety instead of the director of highways, as contained in the Owens amendment.

Attorneys aver that when two differing laws become effective on the same date, the later enactment controls. They said courts have decided cases to that effect in similar circumstances. They call it "case law."

Motorists used their 1951 plates in 1952 but bought windshield stickers that year in lieu of new tags to save steel. Rear plates only were required last year.

Many motorists decorated the front of their cars in 1953 with special plates bearing Ohio sesquicentennial and other legends. Thousands of others left their front bumpers bare, even removing license plate brackets.

An attorney's failure to locate his old bracket led to discovery of the apparent gimmick in the revised code. Irked when he found stores were sold out of brackets, he checked the statutes. Close reading and consultation with other attorneys convinced him that he wasn't legally required to display a front license tag this year.

"Now he tells me," exclaimed a listener who said he had to shop around for a front bracket for his 1954 plate.

There were 94,000 accidental deaths in the United States in 1953.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Police said they found a Dayton man and his 3-year-old son drunk together, and a judge sentenced the father to six months in jail for child neglect yesterday.

Thomas Shropshire, 54, pleaded guilty before Juvenile Judge Frank F. Nicholas.

Police quoted Shropshire as saying the boy drank wine from a bottle which had been left on the floor by his bed.

Treasure House Of Our Biblical Past

By RAY A. LAJOIE

Central Press Correspondent

THE YOUNG MAN called Erdem hoisted a bulky pack onto the shoulders of his companion, Mehmet, and off they went, side by side. Little did these Turkish lads realize, though, that they were walking in the historic steps of another young man who quit that very city some 2,000 years before them.

Although he did not know it then, that young man of 2,000 years ago had a world to conquer. Like Erdem and Mehmet, the city he left was Tarsus. His name? Saul. Or better still, great St. Paul of biblical immortality!

In those days of long ago, Tarsus was one of the great cities of the world. Its busy harbor was filled with ships that plied the Mediterranean waters. Even St. Paul spoke proudly of being a "citizen of no mean city." But today, centuries later, the greatness of Tarsus lies in its vivid memories and precious remains. And it is typical of the cities and towns of Turkey.

Turkey is a land steeped in biblical tradition. From Mount Ararat, where the Ark of Noah foundered, to the western border, where it touches Greece, the country abounds in precious religious sites. Everywhere, the progress of Christianity is indelibly written in cities, hamlets and towns where the early Christians lived and suffered.

LAST SUMMER, an American related the surprise that followed when, while wandering along a road outside Ephesus, he took shelter from the rain in a little stone house. Inside, he noticed a number of people devoutly praying. The scene greatly surprised him. The place did not appear to be a church at all, although he did notice a well-kept altar. What a profound experience it was to discover, he said, that this simple shrine was the restored ruin of the very house where the Blessed Virgin Mary, according to tradition, spent her last days on earth!

This city of Ephesus is no ordinary historic site. It is, as one visiting priest put it, "the most spectacular-ruin you could imagine." The reason is obvious. Built almost entirely of pure white marble, the old city glows like a brilliant stone in the golden sun of day. Two thousand years ago, before earthquakes, the elements and time took their heavy tolls, almost a million people lived within the confines of the ancient, bustling city.

What memories, pagan, then Christian, Ephesus conjures up. At the beginning of the Christian era, a half-million pagans journeyed to Ephesus each year to pay homage at the Temple of Diana, one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World. Wild festivities in worship to the Moon Goddess kept the city

Driven from their homes by persecutors, Third Century Christians settled at Urgan in a valley dotted by strange lava formations. Here they hewed new homes and churches like those above from the lava.

Altar (right) has been built in the modest house near Ephesus where the Virgin Mary spent her last days.

In a high-pitched state of excitement. In the amphitheater, which still stands, 25,000 people screamed their approval of bloody pagan rites.

And within the very sound of that roaring crowd, a lone, but powerful, voice was raised. It was that of the great apostle St. Paul. And in the midst of the license that marked the life of the magnificent city, the Apostle wrote the brilliant, soul-stirring First and Second Corinthians. Later, cruelly driven into exile by the enraged devotees of the goddess, St. Paul embarked on his first great Christian mission.

VISITORS to Ephesus miss a memorable treat if they do not see the nearby Cave of the Seven Sleepers. Legend has it that, at the time of Emperor Decius in the Third century after Christ, seven Christian youths hid in the cave to escape their Roman pursuers. The soldiers found them, however, blocked up the entrance and left them there to die. A tablet tells how a passing shepherd, some 200 years later, unlocked the entrance to the catacomb and awoke the "sleepers," who walked forth miraculously unharmed.

Urgan, known in ancient times as Cappadocia, is one of the greatest natural wonders of the world, and it is also another of Turkey's priceless Christian relics. Tens of thousands of cones, pyramids and minarets, formed by the wind and rain of centuries on hardened lava formations, dot a valley that covers nearly 150 square miles.

Early Christians, fleeing from pagan persecutors, made their way into these formations, hewing out houses and churches and chapels, which they beautified with mosaics and murals in endless variety.

IT IS BELIEVED that the first wave of religious refugees arrived in Urgan in the Third century, and were followed by others in the Seventh, although some of the churches have been identified as being of the Eighth and early Ninth centuries.

Situated 52 miles from Kayseri (Caesarea), the marvels of Urgan are the proud boast of all living in Turkey today.

Last June a group of American students arrived at Turkey's Mediterranean port of Iskenderun only to find that they had missed their intended ship by several hours. On being informed that another ship was not due for several days, they decided on a sightseeing expedition. A hotel manager suggested a short, 25-mile bus trip to Antakya where, because of its altitude, the weather is pleasantly cool all summer long.

RETURN OF DUST BOWL

LAND EROSION IN the western great plains is beginning to approach dust bowl conditions of the 1930s, the Soil Conservation Service reports.

In the five-state area including Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado and Kansas, severe windstorms chasing tumbleweeds across the parched topsoil had badly damaged another 3,700,000 acres of topsoil in the area, bringing the total to 9,300,000 acres by March 1. Since then, enough additional damage has been done to bring the total above 11,000,000 acres.

Farmers from the area are in Washington demanding an increase in federal aid. But much of this recently eroded land should have never been put to the plow. In this semi-arid climate, extreme drought with serious trouble for farmers occurs periodically. Farmers go broke and leave.

After the exodus and a series of relatively wet years, a new expansion of farming takes place. Too much land is cultivated. The wild grasses that offer protection against erosion are cleared away. And the next period of drought ruins a new batch of farmers.

The Department of Agriculture can predict ruin for farmers whenever more acres are cultivated in this area than conditions warrant. In fact, it has made such predictions, which are now being fulfilled.

But the farmers have a better case for federal aid now than they had during the great drought periods of the late 19th century and of the 1930s. During the war they were encouraged to expand acreage and grow more grain. Wartime necessity fostered the new dust bowl.

Much of the land in this area is suitable mainly for grazing and for large-sized farms or ranches which can control both grazing and the cultivation of forage and feed crops. But a sound policy can be developed only during a long period of peace.

INCENTIVE PAY

IN A MONTHLY bulletin of opinion published by Harding College of Searcy, Ark., headed by Dr. George S. Benson, there is a proposal to offer incentive pay to Congressmen. A boost of from $15,000 to $27,500 in salaries has been proposed by one Congressman.

This might be approved, says the Harding College spokesman, with two stipulations:

That Congress balance the 1954-55 budget and thereafter keep it balanced.

That a program of tax reduction and reform be continued until taxes are lowered drastically and levied equitably, without favoritism.

That second suggestion outlines a sizeable task. For years boosts in taxes have been directed toward the goal of "taxation according to ability to pay," which is the direct opposite of equitable taxation.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Jonathan P. Mitchell, formerly associated with "The New Republic," when testifying before the Jenner Committee concerning his conversations with Harry Dexter White, brought out an interesting concept that seems to be prevalent among many persons not only in the United States but in other countries.

It is the idea that the Christian era has terminated and that the next period in history will be the Russian version of Marxism. To many, this is inevitable even if unpleasant and they somehow adjust their thinking to a way of life which they hate but believe cannot be averted.

The following colloquy occurred before the Jenner Committee concerning Harold Laski's book, "Faith, Reason and Civilization":

"Mr. Grimes (committee counsel). Would you state, please, what the thesis of Laski's book was?"

"Mr. Mitchell. I think the thesis could be put as saying that the Second World War was the end of a great historic period, and that private business or capitalism had proved itself inadequate, and that the faith which underlay it, the Christian faith, no longer had any validity for the people who were living then; and that, happily, the Russians had worked out a new system of economics and a new faith which could replace capitalism and Christianity."

"Mr. Grimes. Laski expressed himself as wholeheartedly in favor of the Russian system as replacing both capitalism and Christianity, did he not?"

"Mr. Mitchell. Yes, sir."

Concerning this book, Mitchell said:

"Mr. White said that this was by all odds the most profound book which had been written in our lifetime, and that no one had foreseen with such uncanny accuracy and depth the way in which the world was going."

Harry Dexter White was not alone in this. Whether it was the secular education of the 1920's or the economic hardships of the 1930's, many young men and women turned their backs on the traditional concepts of the Western Christian civilization and found in Marxism an answer to their rejection of a mystical God and a social system based on the private ownership of property.

They insisted upon a scientific and statistical explanation for human existence and behavior. It was during this period that so large a number of really competent human beings found refuge in the dialectical materialism of Marxism. For some, the doubts continued; others joined the Communist Party or associated themselves with allied movements; still others were repelled by atheism and pragmatism.

None of the formal religions met the challenge of Marxism as an alternative to mystical religions and Natural Law; nor have they to this day because they have been unwilling or unable to grasp the startling fact that Marxism is essentially a religious movement, a Church, competing with Christianity, Judaism, Islam and other faiths for the mind and spirit of man.

Only since the end of World War II, because of the antagonism of Soviet Russia for the United States, have any of the conservative groups permitted themselves to study the essence of Marxism.

Mock Polio Vanishes Quickly

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
HYSTERIA brought on by the fear of polio can, under certain conditions, actually cause symptoms of the disease real enough to send patients to a hospital.

As the polio season approaches, many people become very alarmed about the fact that polio could affect them. Their nervous fright may give way to hysterical symptoms, and they may actually convince themselves and those around them that they are indeed victims of poliomyelitis.

A Way Out
These people may be unable to move their limbs. They may show great limitation in moving their arms. Usually, they have some pre-existing mental conflict. Unconsciously, the supposed development of their poliomyelitis paralysis is a convenient way of disposing of their tensions.

It is estimated that up to 37 per cent of the persons who are admitted to hospitals with pre-symptomatic poliomyelitis do not have the disease. Many of them are suffering from this type of nervousness. Besides the paralysis, they may also have such complaints as tightness of the neck, low back pain, headache and a stiffness in the nose. Usually, such people have a morbid interest in polio and considerable self-concern.

Technique to Follow
However, any person who exhibits these polio-like symptoms should be hospitalized and examined to determine whether polio is or is not present. If a careful study by a physician reveals that there is no polio, the patient should be reassured. In most instances, the paralysis will disappear as fast as it came, and the person will be able to resume a normal life.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
Mr. R. P.: Is it true that a person who suffers a head concussion may have symptoms many months afterwards?
Answer: Yes, this is true. Many times these persons complain of headache, giddiness and various types of mental disturbances following such an injury.

It is advisable that if these symptoms persist the person have X-rays and an electroencephalogram study of the brain.

SYNOPSIS
The horse-breeding farm in Tennessee which the widowed Gale Taber and her daughters, Ravel and Julia, had tried to maintain, had run them into mounting debt. Gale had hoped that Ravel might marry John-Mark Williamson, a substantial farmer, and that her younger daughter, Julia, a nurse, might become Dr. Pete Marshall's wife. But Ravel seemed to want Marshall, while Williamson's attention centered upon Julia. In a reckless mood, Ravel joins with Sewell Albright, an old family friend, in a drinking party, an episode which lands Sewell in the hospital where Dr. Marshall and nurse Julia Taber are called upon to attend him. Ravel decides to win Williamson away from her sister, but she rudely spurns her bold advances. During his confinement, Albright's secretary, Farrell Rhodes, carries on his business. Long ago this lonely war-widow had fallen in love with her kindly employer who considered her merely as "his good right arm."

CHAPTER TWELVE
Ravel went to the hall and closed the door tightly. Thelma would try to listen, and what Thelma knew Tony knew almost immediately, and ultimately it all got retailed in John-Mark's kitchen. On second thought she opened the door wide. Not a bad idea if Thelma tattled. Let them worry. Let them wonder. "Dr. Marshall, please," she told the girl on the hospital switchboard.

"The doctor is busy now. Leave your number, please."
A rural number. Would he guess its origin and ignore the call? She sat tense until the phone rang. The voice on the wire was curt. "Marshall speaking."

"Ravel, put a man into her voice."
"Oh, doctor, I have such an awful pain!"
"Wrong number. Call emergency," he barked. "Or call your own physician."

"Oh, shut up! This is Ravel Taber. Listen, Peter Percy, will you take me out tonight if I wear my green shoes?"
"I'm on call tonight. Sorry."
"Well tomorrow night then?"
"I told you I couldn't dance."

"Oh, they only dance on Saturday nights. You can buy me a frankfurter. I'll look enchanting. I will really. You never saw a microbe as beautiful as I will be. You won't be ashamed to be seen with me, Peter."

"I'm a busy man, Ravel. I've got studying to do."
She seized upon his brief hesitance remorselessly. "So you are free! How wonderful! About 7 then. No alibis. I'm a very determined woman."

She heard him clear his throat. Obviously he was uneasily remembering the switchboard operator. "I doubt that I'll be free tomorrow night," he said. "And I don't care to be picked up, thank you."

"Oh, of course. I should have been clever enough to realize. Well then, I'll meet you in the lobby of the hotel—the big one downtown. They have frankfurters there too."

"I'm not making any promises whatever," he hedged.
"Oh, but you'll be there," decreed Ravel blithely. "Otherwise I might have to resort to blackmail. Wouldn't those nurses howl if they knew what your mother had named you? Seven then, or I might show up at the hospital."

DR. MARSHALL was hooked. Ravel was sure of it. He had been attracted to her, she had broken through his arrogant aloofness; now she had to be clever indeed. But determined.

She would go to town in the morning and buy a new hat. Gray. Silver gray to go with the squirrel.

coat, which was gray too, though beginning to show edges. But it would have to do. Under the coat her green dress and the green shoes would be a reminder. A silver necklace too. Gale would have a fit when the bill came in, but she could tell Gale that these would be her Christmas presents. Gale hated shopping; she always bought all the wrong things; she would be relieved.

Green and silver. Dryad stuff. Or was it sirens who lured men? No matter. This was going to be good.

She whistled contentedly as she gathered her cap and boots and went out to the stable again. Now she would make Joachim have a try at that gate.

When her mother had gone, Julia felt a little lost and homesick, realizing that she was growing very weary of the Albright case. Coming along the corridor, Julia saw Sally Albright heading for Sewell's room and decided that now she could be free for a few minutes to wash out her hose and tidy her room. She would give Sewell and his daughter a half hour to get on with their continual arguments about money. Then she would go in and ease Sally out diplomatically, get Sewell calmed down so they could both get some sleep. But when Julia returned to the room, Sewell was holding grimly on to his trapeze affair, his face stiff and pale, and Sally was gripping the foot of the bed, her smart gloves stretched at the knuckles. Julia flipped on a brighter light.

"Sorry to interrupt, Sally, but it's time your father went to sleep," she said.

Sally glared at her, then faced her father. Her voice was hoarse, strangled bark. "Go on. Tell her!"

Sewell did not move. His heavy upper body seemed like something unearthly suspended in space. His eyes looked haunted.

"You might as well tell her," pursued Sally, her voice rising hysterically. "She'll know. Everybody will know."

"What is it?" Julia demanded. "Rhody?" said Sally, almost gasping out the name in a rough and cruel edge on her voice. "Rhody took something. Some kind of stuff. Cleaning fluid or something. She's down in emergency now. They're trying to bring her out of it. The awful part is that she left a note in her typewriter."

Sewell swayed a little then, and Julia ran to him, and eased him down on the pillows, holding his icy wrists in deft fingers.

"I didn't know," he was mumbling. "God knows I didn't know."

At their dinner at the hotel, Pete told Ravel something of his boyhood. His father, a doctor, had neglected his mother.

"He walked alone," Pete said. "So do I."

"I'm going to take you on a call with me," he announced, when he had disposed of the check. He drove across a clutter of railroad tracks and turned into a poor locality.

"I've never been down here before," Ravel said. "No, you wouldn't have seen it," Pete said. "You probably didn't know this locality existed. No one."

who lives over here would know a walking-horse if he saw one, unless it happened to be walking ahead of the milk wagon."

He showed in front of a small house where a dim light burned. The door opened at his knock and a tiny little old woman peered up at them, in the dim light of a single bulb that dangled from the ceiling. Instantly she began to cry, reaching out both hands.

"She's dead! You've come to tell us she's dead! As good a girl as ever lived, and what we'll do now I don't know."

"Hush!" Pete Marshall had his arm around the little body and held her while she clawed at him with childish anguished gestures. "She isn't dead. She's not going to die. Her face won't be pretty for a while and she'll have some trouble swallowing her biscuits, but you can cook soup, can't you? This is Miss Taber, Mrs. Adams, Farrell Rhodes' grandmother."

They entered a hot airless room that smelled of coffee cooked too long. Ravel found herself being introduced to a hulking, red-faced man in a wheel chair, who jerked his feet, in rumpled white socks, back under a thin patchwork quilt that hung over his knees.

"This is Farrie's doctor, Mike," the old woman explained, "and you're the nurse?" She looked questioningly at Ravel.

"My sister is the nurse. Dr. Marshall asked me to come here with him."

The man in the wheel chair heaved, and Mike Adams whipped a hand in the air. "I'm goin' to sue that paper. Printin' all that stuff!"

"She was drove out of her mind when she wrote it, I tell him," insisted the old lady. "Doctor says she's a-going to get all right, Mike. We got to be thankful for that."

"How long since your stroke?" Pete asked Mike Adams, when the old woman had pattered away to get Farrell's things packed. "Both legs affected?"

Mike wagged his feet. "It ain't my legs, it's my hips. They won't hold me up no more. My back gives it's too. This hand ain't much good, but I got feelin' in it."

"There's a nerve therapy for that now," Pete remarked. "You might get back the use of your muscles."

"I ain't goin' to be cut on and butchered up, not for nobody," Adams said. "I worked long as I was able but now I ain't fit."

"You can come to see Mrs. Rhodes tomorrow," Pete told the grandmother when she came out of a rear room with a suitcase almost as large as herself. "I'll deliver this in the morning."

"Malingering!" he growled angrily, as they went back to the car. "I could have him on his feet in a week."

Ravel had not spoken except to answer Mrs. Adams' one question since they entered the house. She shuddered as Pete started the car.

"How could anybody endure it? That awful, stuffy place, that horrible old man! No wonder she drank the stuff."

"She drank the stuff because she wanted love, remember?"

"But she was young." Suddenly, shrewdly, she was crying. She couldn't be—she never cried, she scorned weakness but sobs jerked at her making her angry.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower Administration's professed sympathy for private enterprise versus public (federal or state) financing and operation of utilities and certain industries has become suspect in politico-economic circles because of its latest action with respect to the $400 million project for harnessing wasted water at Niagara Falls.

This new chapter assumes national significance for numerous reasons. In favoring New York state rather than private development of Niagara's boiling waters, Eisenhower seeks to assure a victory for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey against Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. or any other Democratic opponent next fall.

But if the White House favors public promotion here for partisan reasons, it will open the door to similar handling of many other moot developed or undeveloped natural resources — Hell's Canyon, TVA, Bonneville, the Upper Colorado Basin, Passanaguoddy, and, importantly, atomic power.

Thus, the Niagara controversy

furnishes an acid test of the Republicans' philosophy of government on this question. It will answer the question of whether New Deal-Fair Deal policies in this field are to be perpetuated. Its importance cannot be overestimated.

SHOWDOWN — The Niagara project, which is the only vast undeveloped resource of its kind east of the Great Divide, presents a clear-cut showdown. It is a water-power affair exclusively, with no such side issues as irrigation, navigation, flood control and conservation. Five great utility firms, headed by Niagara Mohawk, have pooled their financial and engineering strength, and are ready to build now.

In view of these factors, the House passed the Dondero Bill for private development by an overwhelming majority last year. It rejected a Dewey measure for state promotion and a Roosevelt-Lehman proposal for another Federally sponsored TVA.

ALIGNMENT — The Dondero Bill was scheduled for prompt

Senate approval last year, and construction would be underway now, if Dewey had not intervened. With secret White House reinforcement he forced postponement of Senate action. At current hearings of the Senate Public Works Committee, he has renewed his demand for state rather than private operation. Aligned with him, ironically, are Walter P. Reuther's CIO coke and chemical workers and John L. Lewis' anthracite coal miners in Pennsylvania.

Despite the White House desire to permit Dewey to appear as a champion of public power in next fall's election, it was expected that Eisenhower would keep out of the Senate fight. The House vote for the Dondero Bill reflected Capitol Hill's mood on this question. Even Dewey's New York Republicans lined up solidly against him.

INTERVIEWED — But Ike has intervened for Dewey again at a critical moment. In a letter to Sen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, Senate Public Works Committee chairman, Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes has urged that the Niagara question be referred to the Federal Power Commission. This agency, which has already given Dewey a license to develop the St. Lawrence River power project, will almost certainly hand him Niagara a few weeks before the November election.

Senator Martin's insistence on holding protracted Senate hearings stirs curiosity among his conservative colleagues. In view of extensive exploration of this subject in the House Public Works Committee and on the House floor. But it is noted that Lewis' Pennsylvania coal miners, who can roll up several thousand votes, are hostile to any expansion of such competitive resources as water power.

Thus, industries and individuals over a wide area, for Niagara's juice would be distributed directly or indirectly throughout New England, Pennsylvania and Ohio, will be deprived of power indefinitely in order to re-elect Tom Dewey, who was such a key figure in the nomination of President Eisenhower.

RETURN OF DUST BOWL

LAND EROSION in the western great plains is beginning to approach dust bowl conditions of the 1930s, the Soil Conservation Service reports.

In the five-state area including Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado and Kansas, severe windstorms chasing tumbleweeds across the parched topsoil had badly damaged another 3,700,000 acres of topsoil in the area, bringing the total to 9,300,000 acres by March 1. Since then, enough additional damage has been done to bring the total above 11,000,000 acres.

Farmers from the area are in Washington demanding an increase in federal aid. But much of this recently eroded land should have never been put to the plow. In this semi-arid climate, extreme drouth with serious trouble for farmers occurs periodically. Farmers go broke and leave.

After the exodus and a series of relatively wet years, a new expansion of farming takes place. Too much land is cultivated. The wild grasses that offer protection against erosion are cleared away. And the next period of drouth ruins a new batch of farmers.

The Department of Agriculture can predict ruin for farmers whenever more acres are cultivated in this area than conditions warrant. In fact, it has made such predictions, which are now being fulfilled.

But the farmers have a better case for federal aid now than they had during the great drouth periods of the late 19th century and of the 1930s. During the war they were encouraged to expand acreage and grow more grain. Wartime necessity fostered the new dust bowl.

Much of the land in this area is suitable mainly for grazing and for large-sized farms or ranches which can control both grazing and the cultivation of forage and feed crops. But a sound policy can be developed only during a long period of peace.

INCENTIVE PAY

IN A MONTHLY bulletin of opinion published by Harding College of Searcy, Ark., headed by Dr. George S. Benson, there is a proposal to offer incentive pay to Congressmen. A boost of from $15,000 to $27,500 in salaries has been proposed by one Congressman.

This might be approved, says the Harding College spokesman, with two stipulations:

That Congress balance the 1954-55 budget and thereafter keep it balanced.

That a program of tax reduction and reform be continued until taxes are lowered drastically and levied equitably, without favoritism.

That second suggestion outlines a sizeable task. For years boosts in taxes have been directed toward the goal of "taxation according to ability to pay," which is the direct opposite of equitable taxation.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Jonathan P. Mitchell, formerly associated with "The New Republic," when testifying before the Jenner Committee concerning his conversations with Harry Dexter White, brought out an interesting concept that seems to be prevalent among many persons not only in the United States but in other countries.

It is the idea that the Christian era has terminated and that the next period in history will be the Russian version of Marxism. To many, this is inevitable even if unpleasant and they somehow adjust their thinking to a way of life which they hate but believe cannot be averted.

The following colloquy occurred before the Jenner Committee concerning Harold Laski's book, "Faith, Reason and Civilization":

"Mr. Grimes (committee counsel). Would you state, please, what the thesis of Laski's book was?"

"Mr. Mitchell. I think the thesis could be put as saying that the Second World War was the end of a great historic period, and that private business or capitalism had proved itself inadequate, and that the faith which underlay it, the Christian faith, no longer had any validity for the people who were living then; and that, happily, the Russians had worked out a new system of economics and a new faith which could replace capitalism and Christianity."

"Mr. Grimes. Laski expressed himself as wholeheartedly in favor of the Russian system as replacing both capitalism and Christianity, did he not?"

"Mr. Mitchell. Yes, sir. . ."

Concerning this book, Mitchell said: "Mr. White said that this was by all odds the most profound book which had been written in our lifetime, and that no one had foreseen with such uncanny accuracy and depth the way in which the world was going."

Harry Dexter White was not alone in this. Whether it was the secular education of the 1920's or the economic hardships of the 1930's, many young men and women turned their backs on the traditional concepts of the Western Christian civilization and found in Marxism an answer to their rejection of a mystical God and a social system based on the private ownership of property.

They insisted upon a scientific and statistical explanation for human existence and behavior. It was during this period that so large a number of really competent human beings found refuge in the dialectical materialism of Marxism. For some, the doubts continued; others joined the Communist Party or associated themselves with allied movements; still others were repelled by atheism and pragmatism.

None of the formal religions met the challenge of Marxism as an alternative to mystical religions and Natural Law; nor have they to this day because they have been unwilling or unable to grasp the startling fact that Marxism is essentially a religious movement, a Church, competing with Christianity, Judaism, Islam and other faiths for the mind and spirit of man.

Only since the end of World War II, because of the antagonism of Soviet Russia for the United States, have any of the conservative groups permitted themselves to study the essence of Marxism.

Mock Polio Vanishes Quickly

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
HYSTERIA brought on by the fear of polio can, under certain conditions, actually cause symptoms of the disease real enough to send patients to a hospital.

As the polio season approaches, many people become very alarmed about the fact that polio could affect them. Their nervous fright may give way to hysterical symptoms, and they may actually convince themselves and those around them that they are indeed victims of poliomyelitis.

A Way Out
These people may be unable to move their limbs. They may show great limitation in moving their arms. Usually, they have some pre-existing mental conflict. Unconsciously, the supposed development of their poliomyelitis paralysis is a convenient way of disposing of their tensions.

It is estimated that up to 37 per cent of the persons who are admitted to hospitals with presumptive poliomyelitis do not have the disease. Many of them are suffering from this type of nervousness. Besides the paralysis, they may also have such complaints as tightness of the neck, low back pain, headache and a stiffness in the nose. Usually, such people have a morbid interest in polio and considerable self-concern.

Technique to Follow
However, any person who exhibits these polio-like symptoms should be hospitalized and examined to determine whether polio is or is not present. If a careful study by a physician reveals that there is no polio, the patient should be reassured. In most instances, the paralysis will disappear as fast as it came, and the person will be able to resume a normal life.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
Mr. R. P.: Is it true that a person who suffers a head concussion may have symptoms many months afterwards?

Answer: Yes, this is true. Many times these persons complain of headache, giddiness and various types of mental disturbances following such an injury.

It is advisable that if these symptoms persist the person have X-rays and an electroencephalogram study of the brain.

"I'm not making any promises whatever," he hedged.

"Oh, but you'll be there," declared Ravel blithely. "Otherwise I might have to resort to blackmail. Wouldn't those nurses howl if they knew what your mother had named you? Seven then, or I might show up at the hospital."

DR. MARSHALL was hooked. Ravel was sure of it. He had been attracted to her, she had broken through his arrogant aloofness; now she had to be clever indeed. But determined.

She would go to town in the morning and buy a new hat. Gray. Silver gray to go with the squirrel.

Congratulations to Milton Cross, veteran radio announcer; Carol Bruce, singer; John Hodiak, film actor; and Pete Soder, of baseball fame, for birthdays today.

FOLKS OF FAME—GUESS THE NAME

1—He began his career and road to fame by managing the University of Alabama baseball team in his home state, spotting for Ted Husing and announcing radio sports news. He reports other sports besides baseball and has a contract with a movie studio, but his heart is with the New York Yankees baseball team. He is a bachelor and to most Yankee fans and members of that championship team he is the tenth member. Who is he?

2—This great French satirist and humorist was born at Chinon, France, in 1495. He began his studies at the Benedictine abbey of Seully about 1505. In 1519 he entered the Franciscan monastery at Fontevrault in Poitou, where he studied Greek, which did not please the church authorities. He also studied and practiced medicine and then went to Lyons, which was a great book center. His humor found expression in popular almanacs, making sport of astrologers and their art. One of his burlesques was so popular that he wrote a sequel to a more elaborate form, an account of Gargantua's son, Pantagruel. Both were tremendous successes. From 1537 to 1539 he lived and taught at Montpelier, then removed to Paris where his books pleased King Francis I. When the king died, there was a reaction against liberty of thought, and he fled to Metz, then to Rome, but was later allowed to return, and lived quietly at Moulon until his death in 1553. His Pantagruel, Panurge, Picrochole and Frere Jean are called imperishable creations, and his name is given to a certain form of satiric humor. What is his name?

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower Administration's professed sympathy for private enterprise versus public (federal or state) financing and operation of utilities and certain industries has become suspect in politico-economic circles because of its latest action with respect to the $400 million project for harnessing wasted water at Niagara Falls.

This new chapter assumes national significance for numerous reasons. In favoring New York state rather than private development of Niagara's boiling waters, Eisenhower seeks to assure a victory for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey against Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. or any other Democratic opponent next fall.

But if the White House favors public promotion here for partisan reasons, it will open the door to similar handling of many other moot developed or undeveloped natural resources — Hell's Canyon, TVA, Bonneville, the Upper Colorado Basin, Passanauquoddy, and, importantly, atomic power.

Thus, the Niagara controversy

furnishes an acid test of the Republicans' philosophy of government on this question. It will answer the question of whether New Deal-Fair Deal policies in this field are to be perpetuated. Its importance cannot be overestimated.

SHOWDOWN — The Niagara project, which is the only vast undeveloped resource of its kind east of the Great Divide, presents a clear-cut showdown. It is a water-power affair exclusively, with no such side issues as irrigation, navigation, flood control, utility firms, headed by Niagara-Mohawk, have pooled their financial and engineering strength, and are ready to build now.

In view of these factors, the House passed the Dondero Bill for private development by an overwhelming majority last year. It rejected a Dewey measure for state promotion and a Roosevelt-Lehman proposal for another Federally sponsored TVA.

ALIGNMENT — The Dondero Bill was scheduled for prompt

Senate approval last year, and construction would be underway now, if Dewey had not intervened. With secret White House reinforcement he forced postponement of Senate action. At current hearings of the Senate Public Works Committee, he has renewed his demand for state rather than private operation. Aligned with him, ironically, are Walter P. Reuther's CIO coke and chemical workers and John L. Lewis' anthracite coal miners in Pennsylvania.

Despite the White House desire to permit Dewey to appear as a champion of public power in next fall's election, it was expected that Eisenhower would keep out of the Senate fight. The House vote for the Dondero Bill reflected Capitol Hill's mood on this question. Even Dewey's New York Republicans lined up solidly against him.

INTERVIEWED — But Ike has intervened for Dewey again at a critical moment. In a letter to Sen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, Senate Public Works Committee chairman, Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes has urged that the Niagara question be referred to the Federal Power Commission. This agency, which has already given Dewey a license to develop the St. Lawrence River power project, will almost certainly hand him Niagara a few weeks before the November election.

Senator Martin's insistence on holding protracted Senate hearings stirs curiosity among his conservative colleagues, in view of extensive exploration of this subject in the House Public Works Committee and on the House floor. But it is noted that Lewis' Pennsylvania coal miners, who can roll up several thousand votes, are hostile to any expansion of such competitive resources as water power.

Thus, industries and individuals over a wide area, for Niagara's juice would be distributed directly or indirectly throughout New England, Pennsylvania and Ohio, will be deprived of power indefinitely in order to re-elect Tom Dewey, who was such a key figure in the nomination of President Eisenhower.

Soil Conservation Experts Address Star Grange Meet

'Living Earth' Film Is Shown

Donald Archer and Richard Webster of Pickaway County Soil Conservation department were guest speakers at a regular meeting of Star Grange held in Monroe Township school.

During the lecture, Mr. Archer showed samples of virgin soils and tilled soils. He conducted an experiment showing the ease with which virgin soil absorbs water compared to the inability of tilled soil to absorb it.

The test showed that the water almost entirely remained on top of the tilled soil while the virgin soil readily absorbed and held the water. This experiment proves that employment of good rotation practices to maintain organic matter in the soil is a valuable asset in increasing the water-holding qualities of the soil.

A colored film, "The Living Earth" was shown by the speakers. The film was divided into four parts. Part one, entitled "Birth of the Soil", explained with scientific accuracy the story of how nature produces our life-giving topsoil from the basic raw materials of rock, water, air and sunlight.

The film emphasized the length of time it takes for soil to be made and showed how we in the United States have greatly damaged these vital inches of topsoil that mean the difference between life and death for man.

Part two, "This Vital Earth", told the story of plant and animal ecology, which is the relation of life to its environment. The film portrayed both the beauty and logic in the organization and balance of the living community.

Part Three, "Arteries of Life", reviewed by means of animated drawings the five links in the chain of life as presented by the two preceding films. These are: raw materials; energy from the sun; chlorophyll in plants; topsoil; and the organization of the living community. The film proceeded to add two final links to the chain: water and forests.

Three questions posed by the film included: "Shall this be fertile land? Shall it be desert dust bowls? Or shall it be buried under floods and silt?" The answer to these questions lies with the man who uses the forest and the man who drains the marsh land and the man who tills the soil a thousand miles away.

The fourth part of the film was titled "Seeds of Destruction". This section told the dramatic and tragic story of how man is gradually depleting the God-given natural resources upon which his very life depends. "Seeds of Destruction" is a thought-provoking statement of what happens when any one of the links in the chain of life is broken.

The speakers ended with the warning, "Now is the time to stop, look and remember that this land belongs to you."

Worthy Master Winfred Bidwell presided over a business session during which the grange voted to exchange degree work with Mt. Pleasant Grange. Dates set for the meetings are May 11 and 12.

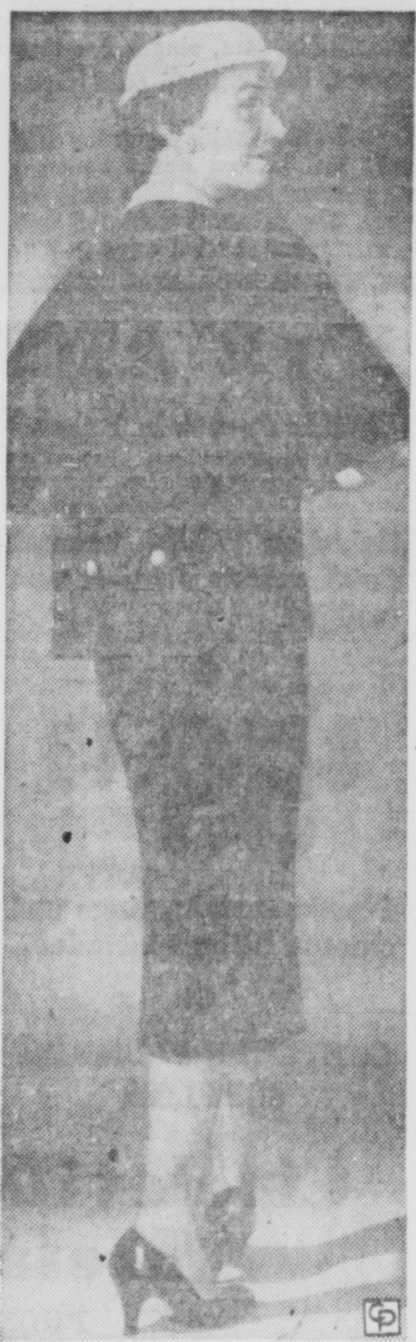

Mr. Bidwell announced that the first practice of the third and fourth degree teams is to be held at 8:30 p. m. April 23 in Monroe Township school.

Motions were approved to answer an appeal for aid and to obtain signers for petitions to legalize standard time for Ohio.

The Home Economics committee chairman announced plans for a sewing and baking contest to be held during the first meeting in June. The ladies of the Grange held a seed exchange following the meeting.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Ingman, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Beathard and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Dunkle.

Play safe when you are laundering! If there is any doubt in your mind about a colored garment being colorfast, wash it separately. Wash, rinse and dry the garment as quickly as possible.

NOT QUITE BOXY—Is this back-belted suit of navy wool, designed for spring, 1954. Sleeves are narrowly set in off the shoulders, and the jacket seams in a curve into the pockets on each side. A white pique blouse is shown with the suit.

Mrs. Eagleson Is Twig Hostess

Circleville Home and Hospital Twig met in the home of Mrs. J. O. Eagleson of N. Pickaway St. Mrs. Ernest Young presided at the meeting, which was attended by 14 members and one guest.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by the hostess, assisted by Miss Carrie Johnson. Next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Mary Talbot of 236 Watt St.

Household Hints

When you are making a butter cake and the recipe directs that the fat and the sugar be "creamed" well, be sure to do so. This creaming incorporates air into the batter and helps to make a light fluffy cake. The creaming may be done with the electric mixer. To cream by hand, tilt the mixing bowl and work the shortening and sugar together with the back of a wooden spoon against the sides of the bowl until smooth and light in texture.

Be sure to hang your dishcloths and dish towels where they will dry well before you use them again. When you launder them, the use of a bottled bleach in the wash water, will help you keep them a good color.

World Today

By James Marlow
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia dislikes and fears NATO and EDC more than anything else in the close relationship between the United States and its Western friends.

They've tried to destroy both of them: NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and EDC, the European Defense Community. The two go together. NATO is five years old. EDC doesn't actually exist.

EDC was intended to be the heart of NATO, a shell without it. Time drags on. EDC is still in the future. Here is the story:

NATO—It's a military alliance between 14 nations which agreed to help one another in case any one of them is attacked. All 14 pool their plans for defense of western and southern Europe under a joint command and planning staff.

But each of the 14 has its own separate armed forces, although the joint staff plans how to use all of them if attack comes.

The 14 NATO members are the United States, Britain, France, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Portugal, Denmark, Norway, Iceland, Canada, Italy, Greece and Turkey. The first 12 joined NATO April 4, 1949. Greece and Turkey came in later.

EDC—It's sometimes called the "single European army." It's supposed to have six members: France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg — all members of NATO — and West Germany.

Under EDC West Germany could rearm. All six nations would give up having individual armies and merge them in a single army. Their troops, wearing the same uniforms and using the same weapons, would be under a single command of their own choosing.

This unified EDC army doesn't mean troops from all six countries would stand shoulder to shoulder in the same squads and platoons. They would not be merged below the division level. Men from each country would be in separate divisions. All the divisions would be under a single, unified command.

This would be EDC's value: it would be part of NATO but this single army, if Russia attacked, could swing into action immediately, giving the other NATO members time to bring up their forces.

The French first suggested EDC. They looked into the future, fearing the day when a revitalized West Germany might rearm and start on a rampage again. They looked on the EDC idea as protection against that.

The reasoning was that if re-armed Germany had its troops merged in a single EDC army, it couldn't plan war on its own. As time passed, many French began to dread the thought of West Germany's rearming at all.

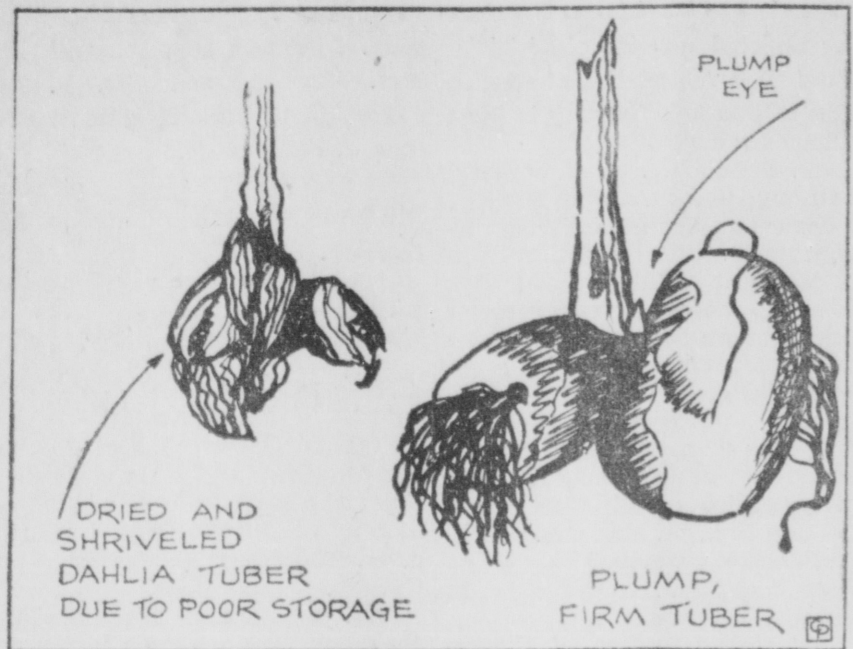

So the French Parliament has stalled on approving EDC. So has the Italian Parliament. Approval has been given by the parliaments of West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. A French showdown is expected in June.

Russia, knowing NATO will be a cripple unless EDC is created, has tried to wreck both by persuasion and propaganda. They've played on French fears by emphasizing the danger of letting West Germany rearm at all.

At the same time the Russians have tried to wreck NATO by maneuvers that ranged from de-

Physical Check-Up of Dahlia Tubers

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

IT IS a good precaution to check dahlia tubers from time to time during the winter months and especially as replanting time approaches.

If you find the tubers too dry and beginning to shrivel, or if too moist and beginning to show signs of decay, the condition can be remedied before all the tubers are destroyed.

If you have not already checked your tubers, do so now. The accompanying Garden-Graph shows the comparison in appearance of a tuber that has remained healthy and plump during storage and one that has become dried and shriveled.

If you find the tubers have begun to dry out, give them a little moisture to help them plump up. Do not plant shriveled tubers. If necessary, soak them for a day or two in a pail of water to restore them somewhat.

Excessive dampness and cold often cause the tubers to decay or mildew in storage. A check-up at this time will prevent the spread of rot or infection. It's the old story of the bad apple in the barrel.

If a tuber shows a soft spot, cut away the decaying portion with a sharp knife. Be sure to cut back to a hard, clean part of the tuber. Then dust the wound with sulphur.

If the buds are not showing enough when you begin to divide tubers for planting, cover the clumps with damp earth and set them in a warm place for a week or 10 days. The buds or eyes will then start growing and you can more easily see where to separate the tubers.

Sokolsky's These Days

The fashion used to be, and still continues in the prevailing religious and political groups, to assume that Marxism is just a movement to grab the spoils of production and distribution, to develop a system of Statism which will eventually enslave all of mankind to the Kremlin, or that it is a form of Russian imperialism managed by a gang of bandits in the Kremlin. As long as the Marxist movement is approached from these standpoints, it will not be defeated because its nature and strength are not understood.

Mr. Mitchell was shocked that Harry Dexter White never used the word, Communism, although he was so enthusiastic about Laski's book, which was an encomium of Communism; nor could Mitchell grasp why, when he was critical of Laski and his book, White became so irate that he started what might have developed into a fist fight. It does happen that when men's beliefs are attacked, they may become violent.

Harry Dexter White apparently believed profoundly that the Christian era had come to an end, and Zoroastrianism once ceased to be a world religion, and that Marxism was to replace the Judeo-Christian civilization "inevitably," because evolutionary historic forces decreed it so.

None of this is surprising. What is astonishing is that the great religious organizations, which are the trustees for our civilization, did not recognize the new force and gird to meet its onslaught on our youth.

His outfit consists of jacket, trousers, gloves and full-fashioned headgear which envelop the wearer like a sheet. As a matter of fact, girls, it is white cotton sheeting applied over a lead-coated wire screen.

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—Movie producer William Cagney, 48, was sued yesterday for separate maintenance by his wife Nadine, 29.

Two days earlier the brother, partner and business manager of actor James Cagney filed suit here for divorce.

Cagney alleged his wife had threatened to take their son Wil-

Mrs. Cagney's action lists as community property a $75,000 Newport Beach home where she is now living, homes in Los Angeles and Beverly Hills, two Cadillacs, real estate, insurance policies and a half interest in Cagney Productions, Inc.

Swede Wanders In U.S. 18 Years

BALTIMORE (AP)—A deportation hearing is scheduled here next Wednesday for a 41-year-old Swedish seaman who said he has drifted around this country for 18 years without detection by authorities.

During this time, said Ronald William Peterson, he has visited all 48 states, staying no longer than one week at a time in any one place.

Peterson, of Goteborg, Sweden, was arrested at Laurel race track on suspicion of auto theft and turned over to immigration authorities when he revealed his background.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia dislikes and fears NATO and EDC more than anything else in the close relationship between the United States and its Western friends.

They've tried to destroy both of them: NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and EDC, the European Defense Community. The two go together. Nato is five years old. EDC doesn't actually exist.

EDC was intended to be the heart of NATO, a shell without it. Time drags on. EDC is still in the future. Here is the story:

NATO—

It's a military alliance between 14 nations which agreed to help one another in case any one of them is attacked. All 14 pool their plans for defense of western and southern Europe under a joint command and planning staff.

But each of the 14 has its own separate armed forces, although the joint staff plans how to use all of them if attack comes.

The 14 NATO members are the United States, Britain, France, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Portugal, Denmark, Norway, Iceland, Canada, Italy, Greece and Turkey. The first 12 joined NATO April 4, 1949. Greece and Turkey came in later.

EDC—

It's sometimes called the "single European army." It's supposed to have six members: France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg — all members of NATO — and West Germany.

Under EDC West Germany could rearm. All six nations would give up having individual armies and merge them in a single army. Their troops, wearing the same uniforms and using the same weapons, would be under a single command of their own choosing.

This unified EDC army doesn't mean troops from all six countries would stand shoulder to shoulder in the same squads and platoons. They would not be merged below the division level. Men from each country would be in separate divisions. All the divisions would be under a single, unified command.

This would be EDC's value: it would be part of NATO but this single army, if Russia attacked, could swing into action immediately, giving the other NATO members time to bring up their forces.

The French first suggested EDC. They looked into the future, fearing the day when a revitalized West Germany might rearm and start on a rampage again. They looked on the EDC idea as protection against that.

Christ the Living Lord -- Easter

JESUS APPEARS TO MARY MAGDALENE,
THEN TO HIS DISCIPLES

Scripture—John 19:41-42; 20:21.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
EASTER DAY, the Lord has risen. All nature rejoices at this time. The leaf buds are opening on the trees; flowers are blooming or about to bloom; birds are singing as they build their nests, and, above all, our scripture tells us that Jesus Christ rose from His tomb on such a day, centuries ago. He died for our sins, but He rose again!

The first two verses of our lesson (John 19:41-42), describe the tomb in which Jesus' body was laid. It was a new tomb in the private garden of Joseph of Arimathea, the Pharisee who was secretly a disciple of Christ's. It was sealed with a great stone and soldiers guarded it at night.

Very early in the morning Mary Magdalene went to the tomb, before it was light. The first thing Mary noticed was that the stone had been rolled away; then she looked in and the tomb was empty. She ran to meet Peter and John, and told them, and side, and the disciples were overjoyed to see their Lord.

Now Thomas, called Didymus, was not with his brethren, and when he heard of Christ's appearance to them he said, "Except I shall see in His hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hands into His side, I will not believe."

This disbelief is the origin of our modern saying, when a person expresses doubts, that he is a "Doubting Thomas."

Eight days after this Jesus came to them again, and this time Thomas was with them. Jesus told him to "reach hither thy finger, and behold My hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into My side, and be not faithless, but believing."

Thomas answered and said, "My Lord and my God!" Then Jesus said to Thomas, "because thou hast seen Me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed."

MEMORY VERSE

"Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed,"
—John 20:29.

they looked in the tomb, and then Peter went in and then John.

They saw the linen that had wrapped the Body lying there, and the napkin that had been about His head neatly folded in a place by itself, but "as yet they knew not the scripture, that He must rise again from the dead."

The two men went home, John writes, but Mary stood without the sepulchre weeping. She saw two angels in the tomb, and they asked her why she wept? She said, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him."

Turning away from the tomb Mary saw Jesus, but weeping, she did not know Him. He said to her, "Woman, why weepest thou? Whom seekest thou?" Thinking Him to be the gardener, she said, "Sir, if thou hast borne Him hence, tell me where thou hast laid Him, and I will take Him away."

Jesus spoke her name, "Mary," and then she knew it was He and joyfully called "Master!" He told her to "Go to My brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto My Father, and your Father; and to My God, and your God."

So Mary told the disciples, and that same evening, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled, "came Jesus and stood in their midst, and saith unto them, 'Peace be unto you.'"

He showed them His hands and

The next time the disciples saw their Lord He appeared to them at the Sea of Tiberias. Simon Peter told the others he was going fishing and they took a ship and went out, but caught no fish. In the morning Jesus stood upon the shore, but the disciples "Knew not that it was Jesus."

Jesus told them where to drop their nets to find fish, and their nets became full. There was a fire on the beach, and at the Lord's bidding they brought the fish to shore and all ate.

"So when they had dined Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou Me more than these? He saith unto Him, Yea, Lord, Thou knowest that I love Thee. He saith, Feed My lambs."

"He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou Me? He saith unto Him, Yea, Lord, Thou knowest that I love Thee. He saith, Feed My sheep."

The third time Christ asked Peter the same question, and that grieved Peter because he thought Jesus doubted his love. Again Jesus told him, "Feed My sheep."

Jesus' last command to His earthly brethren was "Follow thou Me." That is what we all should do, as His disciples spent their lives in doing His work, preaching His word, suffering even martyrdom before they followed Him to heaven.

All Pastors Asked To File Regular Church Schedules

All pastors, both in Circleville and for the churches elsewhere in Pickaway County, are urged to request to bring or send to The Herald, as early as possible next week, their regular schedule of services—to replace the special Eastertide listings.

To facilitate accurate listing when the church schedules return to regular status after Easter, please follow the form used normally in the printed schedules, including only the services and the hours. Brief notes on church activities and separate stories on individual congregations are handled elsewhere on The Herald's church pages.

Keeping the three classifications separated—schedule, brief notes and stories—will be greatly appreciated, since it will make handling of the copy easier.

The post-Easter checkup on both church schedules will be made under The Herald's policy of full cooperation with the district churches and their memberships. In the interests of accurate information, therefore, each church at this time of year should indicate whether it desires continuation of its church schedule data.

Rain Prayer Meet Attendance Poor

MATTOON, Ill. (AP)—Not many people showed up yesterday at churches to pray for rain. The day of prayer had been proclaimed by Mayor H. B. Ewing two weeks ago with the city's reservoirs running almost dry.

Reason for the poor church attendance yesterday: it began raining the night before.

Christ the Living Lord -- Easter

JESUS APPEARS TO MARY MAGDALENE, THEN TO HIS DISCIPLES

Scripture—John 19:41-42; 20:1-13

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

EASTER DAY, the Lord has risen. All nature rejoices at this time. The leaf buds are opening on the trees; flowers are blooming or about to bloom; birds are singing as they build their nests, and, above all, our scripture tells us that Jesus Christ rose from His tomb on such a day, centuries ago. He died for our sins, but He rose again!

The first two verses of our lesson (John 19:41-42), describe the tomb in which Jesus' body was laid. It was a new tomb in the private garden of Joseph of Arimathea, the Pharisee who was secretly a disciple of Christ's. It was sealed with a great stone and soldiers guarded it at night.

Very early in the morning Mary Magdalene went to the tomb, before it was light. The first thing Mary noticed was that the stone had been rolled away; then she looked in and the tomb was empty. She ran to meet Peter and John, and told them, and side, and the disciples were overjoyed to see their Lord.

Now Thomas, called Didymus, was not with his brethren, and when he heard of Christ's appearance to them he said, "Except I shall see in His hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hands into His side, I will not believe."

This disbelief is the origin of our modern saying, when a person expresses doubts, that he is a "Doubting Thomas."

Eight days after this Jesus came to them again, and this time Thomas was with them. Jesus told him to "reach hither thy finger, and behold My hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into My side; and be not faithless, but believing."

Thomas answered and said, "My Lord and my God! Then Jesus said to Thomas, "because thou hast seen Me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed."

MEMORY VERSE

"Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed," —John 20:29.

They looked in the tomb, and then Peter went in and then John.

They saw the linen that had wrapped the Body lying there, and the napkin that had been about His head neatly folded in a place by itself, but "as yet they knew not the scripture, that He must rise again from the dead."

The two men went home, John writes, but Mary stood without the sepulchre weeping. She saw two angels in the tomb, and they asked her why she wept? She said, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him."

Turning away from the tomb Mary saw Jesus, but weeping, she did not know Him. He said to her, "Woman, why weepest thou? Whom seekest thou?" Thinking Him to be the gardener, she said, "Sir, if thou hast borne Him hence, tell me where thou hast laid Him, and I will take Him away."

Jesus spoke her name, "Mary," and then she knew it was He and joyfully called "Master." He told her to "go to My brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto My Father, and your Father; and to My God, and your God."

So Mary told the disciples, and that same evening, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled, "came Jesus and stood in their midst, and saith unto them, "Peace be unto you." He showed them His hands and

Bevo Last Person To Fret After Getting College Sack

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—You'd think elongated Clarence (Bevo) Francis would be a bit fretted over being booted out of Rio Grande College.

After all, Bevo kept the little hill country school in the sports headlines for two years, helped boost its enrollment some 50 percent, and poured thousands of dollars into its coffers through the basketball tournaments.

He failed to take some mid-term exams, and missed school the last two weeks, but found time to compete in a couple of independent basketball tournaments in West Virginia.

So the board, citing the absences and the exams, expelled the 6-foot-

9 sophomore and probably put an end to the most fabulous college cage career in history.

But Bevo probably was the most unbothered person in the whole affair. College officials offered statements defending their action. Coach Lew Oliver screamed that his player had been given a raw deal, and that he and Bevo would leave together.

Bevo took it all in stride. Bevo went fishing.

The expulsion was just another episode in one of the most turbulent and spectacular basketball yarns Ohio has ever offered. Let's take a look at some of the high spots, and low spots, too, in Bevo's 21-year span:

Bevo was born in Hammonds-

ville, in the eastern Ohio hills. He was a puny baby, had to be carried to his bath until he was 10, and missed a lot of early schooling.

He learned basketball in a barn, Hammondsville having no high school team. He shifted to Irondale High, but played no basketball there, although his talents were beginning to shine on the independent floors.

Then his athletic troubles started. His family moved to Wellsville, and Bevo was immediately suspended from high school athletics. Alumni and boosters were accused of undue influence in the Francis move into town.

Bevo missed a year while the charges were investigated, and another when the Ohio High School Athletic Assn. decided they were true. He finally played as a junior, leading the state in scoring with 776 for 25 games, and making the all-Ohio honorary team.

Wellsville lost only two games of the 25, both to Steubenville which reached the state title finals. As the result of a fight during the second game, Wellsville was suspended for another year by the high school association.

Although he had played only one year of high school ball, the 20-year limit was staring Bevo in the face for the 1952-53 year. So when Coach Oliver moved to Rio Grande, Francis went along.

He doubled as a high school and college student, while playing for Rio Grande, and scored 903 points in 18 games for the college before getting his high school diploma. He went on to count 1954 points in 39 straight victories, breaking every record in the book—only to have the NCAA rule the records didn't count.

This year he came back for 1318 points in 28 games, giving him 3272 for 67 tilts over the two-year span, an average of 48.8—a country mile ahead of everyone else who ever trod the hardwoods.

Along the way he was married to his high school sweetheart, became the father of a son, and was named Rio Grande constable via the "write-in" method.

As constable he's never made an arrest. He says he'll work this summer at a West Virginia race track, and will play AAU or professional basketball next fall.

Meanwhile, untroubled, he's just putting out trotlines for catfish.

Legion Corps To Perform At Harness Meet

Circleville's American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps will perform at the Jaycee Harness Matinee on April 25. The announcement was made Friday by Dick Butler, Jaycee publicity chairman.

The Corps will introduce their 27 new bugles for the first time at this event, according to James P. Shea, their publicity chairman. He added that the corps will not engage in any maneuvers but will play most of the numbers the Corps will use in state competition this year.

Thirty-six players, one drum major and six color guards make up the group, which has gained third place in state competition for the past two consecutive years.

Butler further announced the names of local business firms which have donated towards the blankets, halters and lead straps prizes. They are:

The First, Second and Third National Banks, Circleville Lumber, L. M. Butch Jewelers, Sturm & Dillard Gravel, Kochheiser Hardware, Circleville Savings and Loan, Clifton's Auto Sales and the Jaycees.

Indians Share Lead With 3 Other Teams

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians shared first place with three other American League squads today after dropping their first home game to the Detroit Tigers.

The Tribe's first loss in three starts was marked by rain, an hour and a half delay after the eighth inning, and a crowd of about 40,000 or 10,000 less than had been predicted.

The Tigers' winning run came in the ninth when pitcher Mike Garcia walked Ray Boone and Walt Dropo. Al Kaline forced Boone at third on a sacrifice try, but rookie Bill Tuttle filled the bases on a single. Matt Batts grounded out, scoring Dropo.

Manager Al Lopez did not seem ruffled by Garcia's apparent loss of control in the ninth inning. The senior said:

"He was sharper than he's been this spring and he'll be all right."

The home opener in Municipal Stadium began after Mayor Anthony Celebrezze uncorked a fast ball in the vicinity of Gov. Frank J. Lausche at the plate. Lopez was behind the bat.

Before the ceremonial pre-game pitch by righthander Celebrezze, a Marine color guard followed by the Willoughby and Shaw high school bands marched around the stadium, balloons were released and fireworks went off.

Johnson Hoping To Defeat Ward

NEW YORK (AP)—George Johnson has 16 straight victories to his credit but he would trade them all for one good win over rugged Mosley Ward here tonight in their telecast 10-rounder.

Johnson is a 23-year-old middleweight from Trenton, N. J., by way of Sneads, Fla., who has been hoping for "just one big chance."

The fighting father of four got it when he was matched with the husky, hard-punching 21-year-old from Detroit. Ward made a big splash while losing on an eight-round kayo to walloping Willie Troy of Washington in a TV fight last Feb. 23. It was a sensational show while it lasted.

Bevo Last Person To Fret After Getting College Sack

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — You'd think elongated Clarence (Bevo) Francis would be a bit fretted over being booted out of Rio Grande College.

After all, Bevo kept the little hill country school in the sports headlines for two years, helped boost its enrollment some 50 percent, and poured thousands of dollars into its coffers through the basketball turnstiles.

He failed to take some mid-term exams, and missed school the last two weeks, but found time to compete in a couple of independent basketball tournaments in West Virginia.

So the board, citing the absences and the exams, expelled the 6-foot-

9 sophomore and probably put an end to the most fabulous college career in history.

But Bevo probably was the most unbothered person in the whole affair. College officials offered statements defending their action.

Coach T. W. Oliver screamed that his player had been given a raw deal, and that he and Bevo would leave together.

Bevo took it all in stride. Bevo went fishing.

The expulsion was just another episode in one of the most turbulent and spectacular basketball yarns Ohio has ever offered. Let's take a look at some of the high spots, and low spots, too, in Bevo's 21-year span:

Bevo was born in Hammonds-

Legion Corps To Perform At Harness Meet

Circleville's American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps will perform at the Jaycee Harness Matinee on April 25. The announcement was made Friday by Dick Butler, Jaycee publicity chairman.

The Corps will introduce their 27 new bugles for the first time at this event, according to James P. Shea, their publicity chairman. He added that the corps will not engage in any maneuvers but will play most of the numbers the Corps will use in state competition this year.

Thirty-six players, one drum major and six color guards make up the group, which has gained third place in state competition for the past two consecutive years.

Butler further announced the names of local business firms which have donated towards the blankets, halters and lead straps prizes. They are:

The First, Second and Third National Banks, Circleville Lumber, L. M. Butch Jewelers, Sturm & Dillard Gravel, Kochheiser Hardware, Circleville Savings and Loan, Clifton's Auto Sales and the Jaycees.

Columbus On Top In Run Spree

COLUMBUS (AP) — A five-hit winning job by little Tommy Hurd of Charleston and a 25-run orgy between Columbus and Minneapolis featured the American Association yesterday.

Hurd backed up his own pitching chore by knocking in the winning run that gave the Senators a 2-1 decision over St. Paul.

The Red Birds gave 7,268 opening night fans at Columbus a jolt by blowing a 12-run lead in the last three innings. But they finally edged Minneapolis 13-12.

Louisville shaded Kansas City 6-1. Indianapolis' game at Toledo was rained out.

Cop Saves Cop Felled By Wave

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Policeman John C. Kwartz, 39, who has been repeatedly cited for saving lives along San Francisco's Ocean Beach, dove into the surf near Seal Rocks today and pulled out another policeman.

Patrolman Holmes G. Lash, 25, had been knocked down and swept under by a towering wave. He recovered after Kwartz hauled him in on an air mattress.

Both officers were off duty at the time.

Local Leaders Ask Participation In Tree-Planting Program

Arbor Day Set By Governor For April 30

Many Backing Idea For Conservation, Memorials, Beauty

Circleville's Passing Scene: It's tree-planting time for our high schools, and district leaders are urging full participation in the worthwhile program. Arbor Day in Ohio will be Friday, April 30, having been designated by Governor Frank Lausche who will inaugurate on that day the 1954 statewide conservation planning. It will be a follow-up for the program launched under the state's sesquicentennial slogan, "Plant a Tree in '53".

Few of the statewide programs can match the merits of this one, carrying as it does the important cause of soil conservation — linked vitally with the district's future farm prosperity. But protection for farmland soil is only one of the benefits seen in the idea of organized tree-planting.

In many communities the idea has been adapted to serve for various types of memorials and tributes, promising a beauty beyond the reach of even the finest monument builders. And then too, an Ohio with many more trees will be an even more beautiful state.

Schools that are not already lined up to participate in Arbor Day programs should write at once to the Ohio Forestry Association, Southern Hotel, Columbus, to ask that a tree be shipped in time for Arbor Day. The association, in cooperation with the Ohio Reclamation Association and school authorities all over the state, will furnish free to every Ohio junior and high school a selected 18-to-24 inch seedling tree, either red or white pine, to be planted during the statewide observance.

SAY THE HEADLINES: "Mass Evacuation on Foot Urged as Defense Measure."

Considering that hollow up along Hargus Creek, and the ancient st. length of the Scioto River bridge to the west, we're not so sure this is the thing for Circleville; but it could at least solve one of the town's biggest worries. Nobody would stop to argue over downtown parking space.

ent at the National Lutheran Conference in Detroit, Mich.

The Easter Market held by the Ladies Society of the Presbyterian Church cleared $75.

Archbishop Elder of the Cincinnati Catholic Diocese celebrated the 58th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

Rev. T. J. Sanders of Westerville, ex-president of Otterbein University, was scheduled to occupy the pulpit for a sermon at Circleville United Brethren Church.

At the annual meeting of the members of St. Philip's Church, H. B. Clemons was elected senior warden; Grant Swearingen, junior warden; C. E. Moeller, C. W. Murphy, Robert M. Gearhart and C. S. Gusman, vestrymen.

The Spring meeting of the Chillicothe Presbytery was scheduled for the Presbyterian Church at Kings-ton.

The E. L. Sunday School at East Ringold was reorganized by electing the following officers: Superintendent, Rev. F. B. Hax; Assistant Superintendent, R. C. Bowers; Secretary, Bessie Coakley; Treasurer, A. P. Hammel; Organist, Laura A. Stout.

Just the thing to send into the living room when the company insists on staying for the late television movies.

GLANCING BACK With Rotary's Bulletin:

The first commercial movie projector in Circleville was owned by Aker and Elton Palm of East Main St. They were their own advance agents, publicly writers, projectionists and narrators. The projector was cranked by hand and illuminated with an open flame, powered by a carbide gas generator.

The programs were usually held in church auditoriums and other public halls. Programs were about an hour long, consisting of about 20 different movie subjects, interspersed by illustrated songs. Travelogues, athletic events and comics were expertly mixed.

The short that always got the biggest laughs was a print from Thomas Edison's first movie, called "Fred Ott's Sneeze." Lasting for a full 2½ minutes, and consisting of 45 frames or separate pictures, the story illustrated was of Fred Ott, an assistant

Thomas Davidson of 364 Barnes avenue has been designated as "outstanding junior" of the Modern Woodmen Junior Club, No. 3648, of Circleville, according to an announcement received from the fraternal society's national headquarters in Rock Island, Ill. He will receive an engraved medallion in recognition of the honor, presentation to be made at a future meeting of the club.

In winning the preliminary award, the 14-year-old Circleville boy advances to East Central area competition, from which one winner will be chosen to receive an all-expense trip to the Modern Woodmen head camp convention, to be held in Chicago on June 1. In the area contest, young Davidson will compete with other outstanding winners from clubs in the states of Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. The local award was given for the highest rating received in the club for attendance, sponsorship of a-w members, civic awareness and acts showing consideration for the welfare of others. The Circleville club has a membership of 65, and is supervised by Ruby Cross, junior director.
